Reds Hurl Back Germans for Sixth Day

Counter-Drive In North Still Making Gains

American-Made Tanks Aid Russians In Drive on Rzhev; Berlin Undergoes Three-Hour Alarm as Soviet Bombers Stage Air Raid.

(By Associated Press)

All the weight of manpower and machines that the Germans could throw against the defenses of Stalingrad bounced back today off the unyielding lines of its defenders while the Red army, on its own offensive to the north, gave renewed evidence of Russia's still unbroken power.

Hundreds of Nazi tanks and bombers screened large assault forces on the approaches of the Volga river city but for the sixth day Russia's fighters kept intact a bulwark the Germans could not break.

At mid-day, the Soviet information bureau said there had been no change and field dispatches from the Stalingrad front indicated the Germans were leaving men and machines on the battlefield in the still unavailing effort to smash through the Soviet armored lines.

The German high command said Axis forces had pushed from the south to a point only 15 miles from Stalingrad and that night raiding planes again had sown vast fires in the city, blasting particularly railroad and airport targets.

To the north, where the Red army has launched its own "second front" in the drive on anchors of Germany's 1941 winter line, Soviet forces have smashed past the pivotal stronghold of Rzhev both to the north and the south, have cleared the whole northern bank of the Volga and fought into the city itself, Russian officers on the scene said today.

Whether this offensive is strong or timely enough to help save Stalingrad remains to be seen.

Nevertheless, it is unrolling with a show of power which suggests that the Germans may find themselves suddenly uprooted from a vital front they long have held secure and almost certainly will have to draw off men, machines and planes from the Caucasus to strengthen it.

Although the Berlin communique said the Russian thrusts had been repelled, its language—Russian attacks with "strong infantry and tank formations" northwest of Moscow and below Leningrad—indicated the concern with which the Nazis are taking this burst of Soviet strength on the central Russian front.

GETS NEW POST

Patrolman Kyler To Be Police Identification Officer.

Patrolman Clare W. Kyler today was appointed assistant identification officer in the bertillon section headed by E. C. Fuller.

Kyler had been acting in that capacity since the army induction a month ago of Patrolman Paul Martin. Mayor W. J. Locke confirmed the assignment today on the recommendation of Police Chief Thomas M. Bell. Kyler is serving his 13th year on the force.

William J. Taylor, 160 Parkwood boulevard, will begin his duties as a patrolman tomorrow, being assigned by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals to fill the vacancy caused by the separation from service of Robert Garver who, Tuesday, reports for military duty at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Appointment of another patrolman is expected this week.

By LARRY ALLEN

ABOARD A DESTROYER, British Mediterranean Fleet, Aug 30 (delayed) —(AP)— British warships smashed Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's big Axis supply base in the Egyptian desert south of El Daba with a pre-dawn bombardment today and fought their way home under ceaseless dive-bombing, concentrated on this flotilla leader.

Naval gunners fired 1,000 high explosive shells into the sleeping German-Italian base in 42 minutes. They left a wide area of destruction and huge fires amid barracks, tank parks, repair shops, ammunition and fuel depots.

Casualties among Rommel's armored corps technicians, vital for maintenance of his tanks and armored cars in any contemplated offensive, were regarded by British observers as heavy.

Choose County's Healthiest 4-H Club Girl Today

A Richland county 4-H girl health champion was to be chosen today as 25 girls from county clubs received their final physical check-up at the City building. Dr. Mabel Emery, Mansfield, examined the entries.

The winner will represent Richland county in the state contest which will be a part of the annual 4-H club congress in September at Ohio State university. The state contest usually is held during the state fair which was cancelled this year.

The Healthiest boy club member in the county will be selected later in the week and he also will compete with other county winners at the Ohio 4-H congress next month in Columbus.

Examinations for boy health entries will be conducted at four places in the county beginning tonight at the Butler and Springfield township schools. Madison township boys will be examined Tuesday night at the county agent's office at the courthouse. Youths from the northern part of the county will be checked Wednesday night at the Union Rural school in Weller township.

Girl and boy contestants for the healthiest club member honor are checked for general physical condition and special attention is given to their teeth and vision.

BABY KILLED IN RICHLAND AREA MISHAPS

Child, 3, Dies When Hit By Auto Driven By Mansfielder In Holmes County.

STATE'S TOLL 10

Crestline Man Injured When Auto Crashes Into Train on Tiro Siding.

A three-year-old boy was killed instantly south of Glenmont in Holmes county and five other persons were injured in other traffic accidents in the Richland county area over the week-end. At least 10 persons died in Ohio traffic mishaps.

Running from behind a milkhouse on his grandparents' farm four miles south of Glenmont into the path of an automobile driven by a Mansfielder, three-year-old Walter Lowell Brown, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brown, was killed instantly Sunday at 3:45 p. m.

The child was visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown, who live about a mile from his home, when the accident occurred. Dr. A. T. Cole, acting Holmes county coroner, said he suffered a skull fracture.

The car was driven by Blaine Eugene Sellers, 74 South Foster street, who was exonerated by Holmes county authorities. Riding with Sellers was Miss Marcel Long, also of Mansfield.

The child's body will be at the Elliott funeral home in Millersburg until Tuesday evening and funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the parents' home. Rev. J. Hubert Smith will officiate. Burial will be in the Union Grove cemetery.

Surviving, besides the parents and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown, are the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Cooper of Holmes county.

Injured early Sunday when his car crashed into a Pennsylvania freight train on a siding near Tiro, Proctor Steele, 23, Crestline, R. D. 1, was brought to Mansfield on a Pennsylvania passenger train which was flagged at Tiro by a conductor who saw Steele in the car.

Steele suffered severe lacerations on his head and face. He is in General hospital where attend-

Ordnance Workers Killed When Scaffolding Lets Go.

YOUNGSTOWN, N. Y.—(INS)— Five construction workers were killed today, three others were missing and one was seriously injured when a scaffold on which they were working collapsed.

The accident occurred at the Lake Ontario ordnance plant, near Youngstown.

The men were at work inside a huge concrete water cooler tower, being constructed at the ordnance plant by the Pre-Load Tank company, of Long Island City, N. Y.

Five bodies have been recovered.

17 ARRESTED ON TRAFFIC COUNTS

Police, State Highway Patrol Have Busy Week-End; Speed Charges Top List.

Seventeen arrests were made in Mansfield and on state highways Sunday as Mansfield traffic officers and the state highway patrol continued to "crack down" on motorists violating traffic laws.

The bulk of the arrests, 15, were made by the state highway patrol and two-thirds of them were for speeding. The others were for failure to stop at a stop sign, crossing a yellow line and reckless operation of a motor vehicle.

Seven traffic offenders posted bond and signed waivers for their appearance in Mansfield municipal court while others posted bond in courts in nearby towns. Walter F. Gantzler, Crestline, arrested on a charge of failure to stop at a stop sign on Route 61 will appear tonight in G. W. Armstrong's court in Shelby.

Arrested on speeding charges were Hans Quest of Montgomery,

J. H. West, President of Dry Cleaning Company, Dies at 63

John H. West, 63, well-known Mansfield businessman and president of the West Universal Cleaning company, died early today at Shelby Memorial hospital after an illness of three months.

Mr. West has maintained his business in Mansfield for 17 years. He established it in Shelby in 1919 five years after making his residence in that city and he later set up offices in Mansfield. At present, the company maintains three dry cleaning agencies as well as a finishing plant in Mansfield.

Born in Altoona, Pa., on April 29, 1879, he moved to Shelby in 1914. Although he spent most of his time in Mansfield conducting his business, Mr. West maintained his home at 96 West Main street, Shelby.

8 TANKERS BURN

Badly-Needed Rail Equipment Derailed In Maryland.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md.—(AP)—At least eight tank cars burned early today in the derailment of a 60-car Baltimore and Ohio oil train, and blazing oil spread for a time over U. S. route 40.

Sixteen oil cars of the train bound from Chicago to Twin Oaks, Pa., were derailed, the railroad's public relations office said.

Mansfielders, Once Held By Japs, To Arrive Home.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Matti, Mansfield missionaries who watched the Japs invade China and have been held prisoners by the Japs, were to arrive in Mansfield this afternoon. They will be at the home of Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, 426 West Third street, Rev. Matti's sister.

Representing the Friends church, the Mattis reached New York last week on the diplomatic liner Gripsholm and debarked last Thursday.

They have spent 17 years in China and were in Nanking when the Jap armies invaded the city. Although they were under the control of the Japs, Rev. and Mrs. Matti said their treatment was not especially bad as compared with that of many Japanese prisoners.

Police Quiz Trio Arrested By Marshal While Breaking In Loudonville Store.

SEEN 'GOOD LEAD'

Mansfield Officers Checking Fingerprints of Men Held In Ashland Jail.

Believing that a trio of colored men captured during their attempt to loot a Loudonville store early Sunday were members of a gang which burglarized two Mansfield stores last May, police today were conducting investigations seeking to link them with the $7,500 lootings here.

City Detectives Lee Remy and Oscar Krupp, accompanied by Identification Officer E. C. Fuller gathered evidence at the clothing store of Howard Arnolt in Loudonville, and viewed the three prisoners in the Ashland county jail.

Piecing together information previously obtained, the officers appeared certain that Marshal R. G. Schnittke of Loudonville had apprehended the Mansfield burglars. One of the prisoners, a former Mansfield barber who gave a fictitious Cleveland address, has been on the "suspect" list of the Mansfield officers.

Surprising two of the colored men who were jimmying the front door of the Arnolt store with a wrecking bar, Marshal Schnittke encountered no resistance, his command to surrender being backed up with a revolver. The third member of the gang, waiting in an auto nearby, also submitted willingly to arrest and all were herded into the village jail to await the arrival of the sheriff.

One captive gave Ashland county authorities a Mansfield address while his companions offered Cleveland addresses. According to Schnittke, the trio had been seen prowling the village and vicinity for several days and nights prior to the attempt to burglarize the Arnolt store.

Last May 12 burglars obtained 275 men's suits, valued at $7,500, from the Brooks Quality Apparel shop, 80 North Main street, and

Enemy Driven From Foothold By Australians

Few Invaders Taken Off by Fleet of Warships, Others Being 'Rapidly Reduced,' Says MacArthur; U. S. Planes in Fight.

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Australian ground troops, fighting in the muddy jungle of southeastern New Guinea with United States and Australian air units aiding from above, have smashed the Japanese invaders of the Milne bay area in a carefully laid trap.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a special communique today, announced that Australian troops commanded by Maj. Gen. Cyril Albert Clowes, an Australian veteran of the Middle East campaigns, had driven the Japanese out on the narrow peninsula north of Milne bay where they are being "rapidly reduced."

Although a portion of the Japanese forces probably was saved from destruction by evacuation on Japanese warships at night, their losses have been heavy, the communique said.

All of their heavy supplies, including tanks, were abandoned on the narrow beach of Milne bay, which they entered last Wednesday.

The communique, passed out jubilantly at MacArthur's headquarters, told how the Allied command prepared for the Japanese thrust, the fourth enemy attempt to reach the advanced Allied outpost at Port Moresby, New Guinea.

"The enemy fell into the trap with disastrous results to him," the communique concluded.

Milne bay is only 420 miles from the nearest point on the Australian mainland and some 225 miles southeast of the Allied base at Port Moresby.

Bitter fighting still was in progress in the north peninsula area, but the communique said the area was "rapidly being cleared of the enemy."

Australian imperials and militia, "brilliantly supported by American and Australian air units," were credited with achieving the success.

United States service troops were in the Milne bay area as well, previous announcements said.

The Japanese who escaped from the Milne bay trap apparently were taken off on eight destroyers and a cruiser which slipped into the bay Saturday night. Allied bomber pilots, hampered by bad weather, were unable to break up the action.

The Japanese Milne bay adventure was the fourth phase of an endeavor to capture Port Moresby, the communique said.

The Japanese first tried to turn its left flank with their landings at Lae and Salamaua, but this "proved impracticable," the communique said.

The next attempt was aimed at the rear. A large convoy force was engaged in this operation, but it was intercepted in the Coral sea and "repulsed and dissipated by air and sea action."

The third effort, which the communique described as a "weak attempt," was the landing in the Buna-Cona region on the northeast shore of New Guinea and the advance inland to Kokoda, only 60 miles from Port Moresby.

This action still is in progress. The communique reported the enemy "is subjecting himself to extraordinary air losses because

DESPERATE: Japs Due To Try For Tactical Diversion, Belief

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Desperate Japanese thrusts against Russian Siberia, the Australian area, or Hawaii were forecast today by military and naval experts on the basis of recent developments in the nearly nine-months old Pacific conflict.

Nipponese reverses in China and the Solomon islands area of the southwest Pacific, plus mounting warship losses, were cited by these sources as proof that the Japs finally are beginning to feel the pinch of hitherto reckless expenditures of manpower and materials.

That the Japanese are in a dilemma for the first time since the Pearl Harbor attack was indicated strongly by the navy's latest communique which reported that the Nipponese have lost another round in the continuing battle for the Solomons.

The communique stated:

"On August 29 (East Longitude time — August 28 Washington date) the Japanese conducted two bombing raids on our positions at Guadalcanal. The first attack was made by six planes and was followed, about eight hours later, by a flight of 18 bombers.

"Three enemy bombers and four Zero fighters were shot down. Damage to our positions was minor and No U. S. planes were lost."

Just where Japan will strike next in force is a matter of conjecture, but war analysts assert that the Japs can move only in the following manner:

(1) Strike before winter at Vladivostok and the Soviet maritime provinces, which represent a

WARNING: Grew Tells What It Will Take To Defeat Japan

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The American people today had a grim warning from their former ambassador to Japan, Joseph C. Grew, that it would take "our maximum capacities" to smash the brutality and bestiality of the Japanese war machine.

Grew, a career diplomat who has spent the last 10 years in Japan and is probably the best informed person of events in Tokyo as they affected American relations during that time, gave his first public address last night.

Before discussing the "ugly side of cruelty, brutality and utter bestiality, the ruthlessness and rapaciousness of the Japanese military machine which brought on this war," Grew paid tribute to his many Japanese friends who used to contrive to bring him gifts while imprisoned in the embassy.

"They are not the people who brought on this war," he said. "They were personally loyal to me to the end."

But the other side of the picture was a sharp contrast—his description of the "water cure" and beatings inflicted upon elderly missionaries, of the treachery of the high officials.

"That Japanese military machine and military caste and military system must be utterly crushed, their credit and predominance must be utterly broken, for the future safety and welfare of the United States and of the United Nations, and for the future safety and welfare of civil-

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: My friend Lanny Ross, one of the nation's favorite singers, is also an ambitious farmer and a swift fellow with a typewriter. Here he proves that he can write a column as well as milk a cow or sing a love song.—D.K.)

Lanny Ross Says—

I hope you are enjoying your vacation, Dorothy, and also practicing your singing lessons so you can do a guest stint for Lanny Ross, alias "Your Good Man Friday," sometimes. After all — the Voice of Broadway, you know—it needs to be kept in shape.

I remember a few years ago when I was making a picture at the Paramount studio in Hollywood, I asked the head of the lot if there was a studio where I could do some practicing. He was very surprised. "Practice. What for? You know how to sing!"

I guess I should have stood in bed!

But, Dorothy, the thing that is nearest my heart these days is the big part that song has played to win the war. You know I have just returned from a tour of the army camps for the USO and the men gave us a wonderfully hearty reception, generally breaking up the evenings by singing lustily all the new songs with us. In one camp there were so many different companies that we repeated our show in six different theaters.

I've just been asked to serve on a committee to encourage the writing and singing of songs that express the spirit of a fighting democracy. So far, it seems in this war, the soldier in song has been suffering from lovesickness and homesickness. It is expected that he will be entitled to all these delicate sentiments of nostalgia after he has kicked the devil out of the enemy.

My USO tour was the greatest experience I've had in singing and I'm going again as soon as I can —because, believe you me, the boys want to go singing to victory. They not only want to sing but they are a great audience, too.

Looking at him individually, the soldier might have been sitting in the movies in his own home town last month like all the other cash customers, but today, after an eight-hour session with technical studies and drilling and possibly K. P. duty over bushels of potatoes, he wearily glances at the bulletin board to see what is playing at the regimental theater. It may be a movie and word gets around, as it does in any town, that it's swell or not so hot—and then, perhaps, it's a concert and somebody says, "Aw nuts, I'll go to bed.

Then one of the boys cleaning his gun sitting on his army cot says, "You're crazy. I saw the piano tuner go to the theater today and that wouldn't be for nothing."

"May be you're right at that," admits the first one. "I just saw a gink (that's me, by your leave) come out of the reception hall all dressed up in one of those classy tuxedos." Just then the wind is right and the sound of applause and singing comes across the parade ground.

"Holy smoke, the concert's going." Suddenly the tent is empty as if Gabriel himself had blown the reveille.

In thinking of the soldier by the thousands we must not forget the officers and their wives. Many of these are new to army life and they miss the things they left behind. One of the army wives said to me, "Thanks for the lovely music tonight. We have to be reminded that that's one of the good things we're fighting for." A soldier standing behind her grinned, "Yeah, and we're going to have our cake and eat it too, brother."

ROOSEVELT ON AIR WITH TALK TO NAVY TODAY

Sends Encouragement to U. S. Sea Forces in Dedicating New Medical Center.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Beamed to United States naval ships and garrisons in the four corners of the world, President Roosevelt today delivers a radio address commemorating the 100th anniversary of the navy medical and surgery bureau, and dedicating the recently completed naval medical center on Washington's outskirts.

Termed a "fighting address" by sources close to the White House, the speech is expected to contain a message of encouragement to United Nations forces on the far-flung battle lines of World war 2.

This address, the first of a series of three, will be made over national networks at 4:30 p. m. (EWT).

Special significance was attached to the broadcast as orders went out to the army, navy and coast guard to make arrangements for all members in the armed forces to hear it.

On Sept. 3, the chief executive will address the international students assembly on education and the war, and on Sept. 7th he will make a radio "fireside chat" explaining wage and farm price controls adopted to check the inflation spiral.

The Sept. 3 address, to be broadcast at 1:30 p. m. (EWT), will contain a message to the youth of the world, both in the United Nations and enemy countries. Special short-wave hook-ups have also been arranged for this broadcast.

Although a message to congress will precede the "fireside chat" on Labor day, the president indicated at a recent press conference that measures taken to control the rising cost of living will be accomplished by executive orders rather than requests for legislation.

Although wage and farm price controls will comprise the two major items of the anti-inflation move, it is expected that the president will have some comment to make on the $6,000,000,000 war tax bill—still before congress—and other economic factors that fit into the inflation picture.

HITS MIDWEST GAS RATIONING

Petroleum Industry Official Says It Would Be Only a Political Move.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Frank Phillips, general chairman of the petroleum industry committee for district two, said today that if gasoline rationing is imposed upon the midwest it will be only to satisfy "political considerations, not economic necessities."

Phillips' statement was issued in answer to "share your oil" appeals from the east where, he said, oil shortages have been caused by ship sinkings and diversion of ocean tankers to other uses.

"The midwest," he said, "has given the east all the assistance its own petroleum industry committees have asked for, both in manufacturing and forwarding products and in releasing transportation facilities to be used in carrying products from other districts to the east.

"The job can be done without rationing in the midwest, and is being done. If rationing is imposed on this part of the country it will be to satisfy superficial political considerations, not economic necessities."

Phillips said midwest refiners already have reduced gasoline production and increased fuel oil production approximately 20 per cent and undertaken overland shipping of oil products from the middle west and southwest at additional costs of approximately $350,000,000 a year.

'MISSING' FLIER SAFE AT FIELD

Reported Overdue On Flight, Lands Short of Goal.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—T. O. Warfield, New York business man who had been reported missing on a flight from New York to Chicago, was safe here today with Mrs. Warfield.

Flying in from Buffalo last night, Warfield came down at Willoughby airport rather than at a Cleveland port which he had given as his destination. State police in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York had been asked to search for the plane when it failed to reach its scheduled destination.

INFANT DIES

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hammer Succumbs at Home.

Ronald Philip Hammer, six-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hammer, 26 Hoffer avenue, died yesterday at the home after an illness of several weeks.

He was born March 16, 1942. Survivors besides the parents are his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Warga and Mrs. Elizabeth Hammer; and three great-grandparents.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wappner funeral home Tuesday at 1 p. m. Rev. M. W. Wappner will officiate in the absence of Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, who is on vacation. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

LEVY PROPOSED

Columbus Council Studies Addition To Operating Fund.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Columbus city council was to go in session today to consider a proposal to place a 1½-mill special levy on the ballot at the November 3 election. The proposal is designed to produce approximately $576,000 annually for the city's distressed general fund and would be in charter amendment form.

WE'VE ONLY GIVEN JAPS SAMPLE, ADMIRAL KING TELLS HOME TOWN

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The man who directs the United States fleet's far-flung operations today lends a personal touch to a manpower drive to carry on "this people's war.

Admiral Ernest J. King, warmed by the hero's welcome accorded him in his native Lorain yesterday, comes here for an address signaling the opening tomorrow of a 60-day campaign for 10,000 naval recruits in the Cleveland area.

Making a half dozen appearances at Lorain, the nation's ranking admiral promised his home townsmen the battle of the Solomon islands was "but a sample" of what the enemy can expect, and asked for more war tools.

"We need every tool of war we can lay our hands on, and we need them as soon as we can get them," he told 3,000 workers and townspeople gathered in the yards of the American Ship Building company.

"We have been able to furnish to our enemies on Tulagi in the Solomons area but a sample of what they're going to get. They'll get more as we get the killing tools. This is a people's war and we are all in it until it is won.

"Our great difficulty today is in implementing all of the eight fronts at the same time. We'll be able to do it, but first we must have more tools. The tools are chiefly in the making, and they must be made before we can put them to work. We must not forget that we're still amateurs at fighting compared to the people we are fighting.

"It's going to be a long war. We'll really hit our stride in about a year's time."

By then, he added, the number of men in the armed forces will have risen from the present 5,000,000 to about 8,000,000.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, ate bacon and eggs at the home of his brother here today after spending the night in the spare room—unguarded.

"That's the way Ernie wanted it," said the admiral's sister-in-law, Mrs. Norman King, with a laugh. "I thought how the British had sent 50 men to capture General Rommel and wondered how our house would stand something like that."

The Cleveland Kings live upstairs in a double house. The William T. Jack family, which lives downstairs, flew a flag in the admiral's honor, and that was the only sign in the neighborhood that the United States' top admiral was there.

NEAR FINISH

Shelby Autocall Plant To Complete Annex Soon.

SHELBY—A new 2,500 square-foot annex to the Autocall Co. plant will be completed within the next few weeks, J. R. Harrington of Mansfield, vice president, disclosed today.

Additional machinery will be added to the plant, increasing the number of persons employed there.

The annex is connected to the new addition completed during the past year that cost approximately $200,000 with equipment.

The Autocall manufactures war materials.

UNCLE DIES

Mansfielder Learns of Demise of Charles P. Ward.

Word has been received by Mrs. E. S. Wiltrout, 11 Cappeller court, that her uncle, Charles P. Ward, 88, native Richland county resident, had died at his home in Seattle, Wash., on Aug. 22.

Mr. Ward was a well-known Weller township farmer. He left this area several years ago to go to the Klondike. Later he established his home in Seattle. Funeral services and burial took place in Seattle. Besides Mrs. Wiltrout, Mr. Ward is survived by several other nieces and nephews.

V-Mail service dispatched from Mansfield postoffice is on the increase as well as the incoming service. The special combined correspondence sheet and envelope is now used by practically everyone sending mail to a relative or friend in service overseas, Postmaster H. E. Homberegr said, and the latter has been notified that the war department has increased its facilities to promptly handle the national volume expected in the future. The postmaster pointed out that the film, upon which the communications are reproduced, is given the most expeditious dispatch available. Because of the small space taken up by the rolls of film they can often be carried on ferry planes or bombers, he said.

Four roses, and in a little brown jug, too, greeted Waterworks Superintendent O. C. Kalbfleisch as he reached his desk in City Hall this morning. The floral (not liquid) bouquet was the gift of George Uhlich, 497 Park View, an engineer at the Maxwell pumping station. During the summer, Uhlich and others employed at the station have beautified the grounds. Recently Kalbfleisch directed the plowing of the field surrounding the station and seeding the plot to grass. "This," he said, "will eliminate not only an eyesore but a mosquito-breeding campus as well." The flowers were the result of the beautification project.

Members of city council and others desiring to present legislation before the "city fathers" will hereafter be required to have such data on file in the city clerk's office not later than 4 p. m. on the day preceding any council meeting if recommendations of Mayor W. J. Locke are complied with. Declaring that in many cases councilmen vote for adoption of legislation without having first gained a thorough understanding of the issue, Mayor Locke today urged rigid compliance with a resolution of June 9, 1936, which requires such filing of proposals. Hereafter, City Clerk Robert R. Black will be directed to empty the council hopper at the stipulated time, and not permit the introduction of other but emergency legislation for consideration the following day.

JURY DATE SET

Grand Jurors To Probe 17 Cases Sept. 8.

The Richland county grand jury will be called into session Tuesday, Sept. 8 to investigate 17 cases and complete its work before the fall court term opens Sept. 14, C. A. McKinley, common pleas court assignment clerk, said today.

New grand and petit jurors will be drawn late this week, but they will not convene until after the opening of the September court term, McKinley said.

Majority of the cases to be presented to the summer term grand jury by Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell, involve charges of non-support, breaking and entering, and issuing checks with insufficient funds.

Church at Shelby Conducts Unusual Galilean Service

SHELBY—Something unique in church services was the Galilean program given Sunday night along the shores of the south lake in Seltzer park by the United Brethren church congregation.

The church quartet directed by the pastor, Rev. J. C. Searle, sang several numbers while sitting in a rowboat which was being rowed to the shore from the far end of the lake.

Rev. Searle gave the sermon. Rev. Victor Roebuck of the Tiro United Brethren church assisted with the special service which was attended by about 400 persons.

DIES SUNDAY

Mrs. Mary Counterman, 91, Succumbs At Londonville.

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Mary Counterman, 91, life-long resident of Loudonville, died Sunday afternoon at the home of her sister, Miss Cora Danner. She had been ill several weeks.

She was born Dec. 24, 1851, and was the daughter of Sylvester and Rachel Danner. Only immediate survivor is the sister with whom Mrs. Counterman resided.

Services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Gilbert funeral home. Rev. G. H. Volpitto, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be in Loudonville cemetery.

FACE CHARGES

SHELBY — Charged with reckless driving, Elmo L. Jordon and Carl Beal, both of Mansfield, today were to appear in Mayor W. R. Morris's court here.

OPA READY TO ACT TO LEVEL DISTRIBUTION

Will Peg Wholesale Prices and Allocate Supplies To Retail Dealers.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price administration experts today disclosed that a program to assure adequate distribution of war short meat supplies by pegging wholesale prices and allocating meat to retailers will be announced by OPA late this week.

The price stabilization plan, they said, will be the first step in a program designed "to get meat into shortage areas."

Since 25 per cent of this year's meat supply must go to the armed forces and lend-lease, the OPA experts explained, sections of the country, not profitable to the packers, would go short of meat should OPA not take immediate action to equalize distribution.

Stabilization of wholesale prices, they added, should make all sections of the country equally profitable to the packer.

Allocation to retailers, experts said, will be entailed in price stabilization, in order to prevent big packers supplying peg-priced meats "preferentially" to "outlets" that might be profitable after the war.

The pegged wholesale prices, they said, will be based on a set level at five centers of meat distribution — Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Paul, Minn.

Prices at these centers will be equal—not able to vary up or down without OPA action.

Then, the experts said, wholesale meat prices at other points will be figured on the base price plus the cost of transportation from the nearest distribution center.

Meat sold on the basis of these pegged wholesale prices, OPA believes, will net the packer the same profit wherever the product is sold.

Along with the pegging of wholesale prices, OPA experts said, must come adjustments of regional retail meat price cealings so that local butchers will not be equeezed out of business by new wholesale schedules.

Gypsy Rose Weds As Clock Strikes Hour of Midnight

NEW YORK — (INS) — Gypsy Rose Lee, strip tease queen, and Alexander Kirkland, featured player in "Junior Miss," were married today, the time of the ceremony being officially clocked as on the stroke of midnight." The ceremony was performed at Gypsy's home in Highland Mills, N. Y.

Carl Van Doren, historian and biographer, was best man while Miss Lee Wright, an editor for Simon and Schuster, Gypsy's publishers, was maid of honor. Gypsy was author of the best selling mystery "The G-String Murders."

There will be no honeymoon for the present as both Gypsy and Kirkland are appearing in current Broadway successes.

AUSSIES SMASH JAPANESE BACK AT MILNE BAY

Invasion Attempt Shattered, Says Gen. MacArthur; U. S. Airplanes in Fight.

of the extreme vulnerability of his exposed position."

"His latest effort," it added, "was to turn the right flank by a surprise attack at Milne bay. The move was anticipated, however, and prepared for with great care. With complete secrecy the position was occupied by our forces and converted into a strong point.

"The enemy fell into the trap with disastrous results to him."

Solomon Forces Take Heavy Jap Plane Toll

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— U. S. marines in the Solomons, "Well-established" on six of the islands and using airfields and seaplane bases captured from the Japanese, have shot down at least 111 enemy planes and are believed to have gained complete control of the air in the Tulagi area.

Latest air success came on Saturday, the navy revealed in a communique last night, when seven Japanese planes were shot down during two air raids. Earlier, land-based planes from Guadalcanal sank a large destroyer, probably sank another and set a smaller one on fire.

The Japanese sent six planes over American positions on Guadalcanal and eight hours later sent over 18 bombers. Three bombers and four zero fighters were shot down. Damage to American positions was minor and no American planes were lost, the communique said.

Japanese naval losses—now reported as at least 18 ships sunk or damaged—and plane losses may be even higher. The navy disclosed that at least 71 planes were shot down the first two days of operations, and has since announced 40 more.

Reports Futile Port Darwin Raid

GEN. DOUGLAS M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —(INS)—An "ineffectual" Japanese air attack was made today against the Allied base at Port Darwin, it was announced.

Two flights of three Jap planes each attacked last night but their bombs fell harmlessly in the harbor and in a mangrove swamp.

Calls Australia's Position Still Perilous

CANBERRA —(INS)— Australian Army Minister Francis Forde, commenting today on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's announcement of the repulse of Japanese forces at Milne bay, said:

"Though the latest news is encouraging, it does not minimize the seriousness of the position confronting Australia."

Prime Minister John Curtin expressed the government's gratitude to the Allied forces at Milne bay.

"Australia is well served," he said.

Allies Hold 'Cork', London Reports

LONDON —(INS)— Japanese forces remaining in the Milne bay area of New Guinea "are bottled up and the Allies are holding the cork," the London Evening Star reported in a special Sydney dispatch today.

Remnants of the enemy expeditionary force are pinned on the narrow tongue of land north of Milne bay, and to save them Japanese warships must carry out an evacuation comparable in difficulty to the British withdrawals from Greece and Crete.

The Japanese have a choice of cutting their losses or throwing in big forces under risky conditions in an attempt to relieve them, the dispatch said.

American Strike At Jap Burma Bases

CHUNGKING, China— (UP) — American Army planes based in China have made heavy and successful attacks on Myitkyina and Lashio, the two great Japanese bases in northern Burma, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced today.

In addition United States Army planes based in India and British air force planes have made two attacks of their own on Kyitkyina, a communique issued at New Delhi said.

Stilwell announced that his planes had attacked Lashio, terminus of the Burma road to China, Saturday and had scored 32 direct bomb hits on the airport hangars and runway.

Chinese Storming Another Air Base

CHUNGKING —(UP)— A Chinese communique reported today that Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's troops have recaptured Sungyang in their Chekiang province offensive, destroying half of the Japanese defending troops and driving the remainder eastward.

The Chinese in eastern Chekiang were said to be continuing to advance.

Other reports said that the Chinese were storming Kinhwa, the air base city, and were seeking to drive the Japanese from Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi.

THIS GETS TO BE OLD STORY

'All American Aircraft Return Safely' Once More.

(By Associated Press)

"All American aircraft returned safely."

Eight times now this has been the tag line capping the success of the United States army air force flying fortresses on the eight bombing raids they have made so far on occupied France.

Today the same line comes from American bombing forces on two other continents.

In North Africa, medium and heavy American bombers blasted the Axis supply port of Tobruk and enemy airfields east of Matruh, and—the Komito Clothes store, 23 North Park street. At the North Main street store, entrance was gained through a transom over the main entrance, the thieves carrying out 150 suits through a rear door. At Komito's the vandals broke down the front door and carried off the loot through the same entry. The loot here was 125 suits.

All American aircraft returned safely.

Police Chief Thomas M. Bell and others, determining that patrolmen regularly assigned to the business district had been dispatched on fake emergency calls to other parts of the city around 3 a. m., concluded the burglaries were accomplished by a well-organized gang using several autos.

Discovery of the burglaries was made by N. W. Minnear, merchant policeman, who reported seeing a large sedan, apparently heavily laden, dash out of an alley in rear of the Brooks store and speed away on East Fourth street.

Cleveland police aided local detectives in a fruitless effort to trace the burglars at that time, or to locate the "fence" who disposed of the "hot" suits.

STRIKE ENDED

Workers Return to Buick as Wildcat Tie-up Ends.

FLINT, Mich —(INS)—A wildcat strike which halted production at the new Buick Aluminum plant has been settled and the plant is now operating, a spokesman for Buick said today.

The spokesman said an agreement was reached following an all night conference between state and federal mediators and representatives of the company and the UAW-CIO.

According to company officials, the strike started after two young employes were discharged. High ranking union officials termed the strike a wildcat affair.

BLOW UP SAFE, MEAT WITH IT

Cracksmen Smash Half Ton of Meat In Public Market.

MALDEN, Mass.—(AP)—Cracksmen blew a heavy safe apart in the Malden public market during the night, obtaining more than $1,000 in cash, but the loss was much greater.

Police found that the thieves had wheeled the safe into a big ice chest, and piled it high with sides of beef to muffle the sound of the nitro-glycerine explosion.

The blast blew the safe apart and smashed about a half ton of meat into hamburger.

MADE A COLONEL

Lehrbas, Former AP War Writer, Promoted By MacArthur.

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur today promoted his aide, Lieut. Col. Lloyd Lehrbas to a full colonel. The advancement followed upon Lehrbas' return to headquarters from a mission to the New Guinea battle fronts.

Lehrbas obtained leave from the Associated Press soon after the United States went into the war and joined MacArthur's staff. His promotion came on the eve of the third anniversary of the bombing of Warsaw which Lehrbas covered.

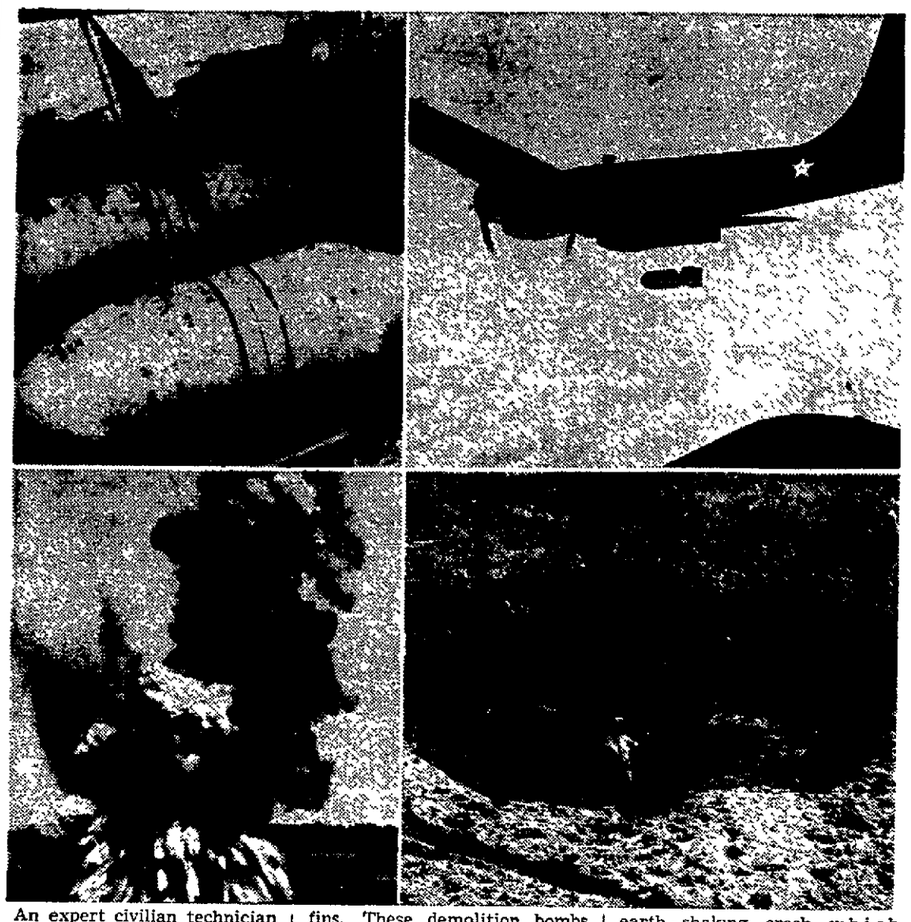
Army Airmen Test One-Ton 'Block-Busters'



An expert civilian technician is shown preparing two 2,000-pound demolition "block buster" bombs for a test at the Army Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Md. (top left). A red flag waves spectators away from a brace of the bombs, on which the workman is attaching tail fins. These demolition bombs are called "block-busters" because they level a city block when they hit. Right, this remarkable photo shops a one-ton demolition bomb an instant after it was released from the two-motored plane. In the bottom left picture the bomb is shown detonating with an earth-shaking crash which sends flame, smoke and earth 2,000 feet skyward. Right, this is the crater dug by the blast of the "block-buster." The officer standing at the base of the crater is holding a still hot fragment of the huge bomb. These are official U. S. IRA PROTESTS

Calls Presence of U. S. Troops In Ireland 'Aggression.'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—(AP)—The outlawed Irish republican army issued a manisfesto today charging that the presence of United States troops in northern Ireland is an act of aggression.

It asserted that the IRA reserves the right to use "whatever measures present themselves" to clear the territory of such forces.

If hostilities were resumed between the British and Irish and the Americans were drawn into the conflict, it said, the responsibility must rest with those "who presumed to use northeast Ireland as a military base without the Irish people's free consent."

(The Irish Republican Army, an extremist organization, has been outlawed both in Eire and northern Ireland.)

sociated Press correspondent in Moscow, saw Russian troops riding United States tanks into the battle and four things were apparent:

1. Even the exhausting summer battles have left the Red army strong enough to mount an offensive on a limited front.

2. American equipment, tried and proved in action, now is a regular part of the Russian arsenal.

3. Germany's defense line, built and strengthened west of Moscow in the past seven months, is vulnerable to mass attack.

4. The autumn rains have arrived as the advance heralds of another Russian winter.

Keeping up another show of strength where the Germans least expected to find it, Russian airmen cut a path of explosion and fire across eastern Germany Saturday night from the Baltic ports of Koenigsberg, in East Prussia, Stettin, and Danzig to Berlin itself.

Swedish reports said the Nazi capital was under air alarm for three hours.

Unsuitable flying weather temporarily halted the air blows of the RAF'S great night bombers in what rapidly has developed as an overlapping, double-bladed aerial war against Germany capable of carrying sudden devastation to the remotest corners of the Nazi fatherland.

A spurt of Allied sea and air assaults on the Axis ashore and afloat in the Mediterranean theater underlined the approaching day when rested, reinforced armies on both sides will come to grips 80 miles west of Alexandria.

United States bombers smashed effectively again today at enemy landing fields east of Matruh and at the waterfront of Tobruk.

British headquarters announced that RAF bombers and torpedo planes set two Axis supply ships afire, hit at least one other and left a tanker blazing from stem to stern in week-end aerial stalking of the enemy's Mediterranean supply lines.

The defenses of Malta, where one British report said the Axis has spent 807 planes so far in the vain attempt to reduce that island stronghold, were credited officially with adding 13 more—including nine bombers—since yesterday.

A swift raid by British forces last Friday on the tiny Mediterranean island of Antikythera, between Greece and Crete, first disclosed by the Italians, was given at least tacit confirmation by British sources.

The Italians said a small landing force had retreated "on the quick intervention of our defenses."

An authoritative British source in London said that such a landing — perhaps to destroy some enemy installations — was "not unlikely" and that it might never be announced officially.

Raids on Germany Called Reds' Biggest

MOSCOW —(U.P.)— Russia's air raids on Berlin and other German cities Saturday night were the largest the Red air force has ever made, it was made known today.

A communique said 48 fires broke out in the Berlin area including 17 large ones and there were nine heavy explosions.

Plane crews including Sergei Danyshin, an ace bomber pilot, reported direct hits on the Siemens Electrical factory, chemical, steel, automobile and optical instrument factories, railroad stations and artillery and powder factories.

They said they could see flames many miles after they had left.

All planes engaged, four motored bombers, returned to base safely.

U. S. Bombers Deal Smashing Blow

CAIRO —(UP)— United States four-engined bombers set fires in the Axis-held port of Tobruk last Friday and Saturday nights that could be seen for 90 miles, it was revealed today.

The United States airforce, working in close co-operation with the RAF, took advantage of the perfect desert moonlight to give Tobruk, chief port of supply for the forces of German Marshal Erwin Rommel, two of the severest aerial batterings administered since the enemy gained control there last spring.

The Friday night raid was directed against supply dumps, jetties and shipping in the harbor. One cargo ship was hit squarely and left burning in addition to the fires started on ground installations. The next night the Americans with their flying fortresses and Consolidated Liberators went back and attacked Axis landing fields as well as targets around the harbor.

constant threat to Japan itself because they are only 600 bombing miles away from Tokyo;

(2) Move in force into the Solomons and other islands north of Australia before U. S. marines and other American and United Nations forces become firmly entrenched for further counter-offensive actions;

(3) Assault important Midway island or Pearl Harbor again in a final desperate attempt to take one or both of those strongholds, from which the United States has been moving in what appears to be a general counter-offensive against the enemy.

Particularly significant has been the recent withdrawal by the Japanese of powerful forces from the Chekiang province of China, site of valuable air bases near enough for bombing raids upon Nippon's major cities.

Best To Advertise Despite War To Keep Product Up

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. —(INS)— Advertising by concerns that because of the war now have nothing to sell to the public is well founded, according to Professor Brooks Smeeton, of Indiana university.

Customers of yore will not be waiting after hostilities cease if the company's name and product is not kept before the public, he said.

He cited a number of examples during the first world war.

A padlock firm, he said, had 60 per cent of the nation's business before World War I. It ceased advertising because it had government business that would absorb its capacity. But a competitor boosted his advertising allowance and after the war was over had most of the business. The first company sold out.

After sales of a roofing company doubled during that war, it ceased advertising. Now it is only one-thirteenth as large as it was.

2 WOMEN SLAIN

Four Other Persons Wounded; Police Hunt Killer.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— A shotgun assailant shot and killed two Negro women and wounded four others early today. The dead were Mrs. Lance Wynn and Ophelia Saddler, 39, both residents of the house where the shooting occurred.

Wounded were Lance Wynn, husband of one of the slain women, and a third woman and two other men, all Negroes. The slayer still was at large.

ALLEN IN THICK OF SCRAP AGAIN

there was little answering fire from the shore. The action was broken off in the moonlight at 4:57 a. m. and this destroyer pulled away, followed by the other warships.

Soon after sunrise, the Germans launched an attack with more than 50 Stukas, one of the fiercest and most intensive ever loosed against surface craft.

Out of the sun swooped six Stukas for the first round.

They made for this destroyer like a beast after prey. Pompom batteries, machineguns and turret guns of the destroyer were brought into play. The warships added to the defensive fire, but the Stuka pilots paid little attention.

They droned close, pulled out of their dives, and there was the terrifying swish of heavy bombs. Holing the sea close alongside the destroyer, the bombs gave her a huge jolt. but she plowed on.

Heavier assaults came in succession. Thousands of empty shell cases littered the decks, gunners were weary and the superstructure was riddled by bullets.

The dive-bombers persisted until the destroyer was well within sight of our home base.

Nevertheless, the commander reported the casualties were slight. I escaped with cuts, bruises and shock.

There were times I thought I never would get out of it alive.

It's funny, but once when I had my face pressed to the deck a little brown coachroach scampered before my eyes. My first impulse was to kill it. But I knew it wanted to live. I flicked it away.

The dive-bombers came in teams of sixes or tens.

Big bombs washed the destroyer's decks with geysers of water and sand from the bottom of the Mediterranean.

German shore batteries then opened fire.

Simultaneously, more Stukas roared overhead. Near misses rocked the vessel.

A dozen or more German shells whistled over my head before the destroyer passed out of range of the land-based guns. The destroyer never answered the shore shelling. We were involved enough with the Stukas.

A Nazi flier dropped a stick of eight bombs on our port side. Smoke poured from the tail of his plane as he pulled away.

British fighters appeared to battle the enemy squadrons and brought down one plane.

Italian bombers and Messerschmitt fighter-bombers sped into the fray and explosives fell by the score.

Within sight of our home quay, the Axis crews ceased their assaults.

The launch of Admiral Sir Henry H. Harwood, commander in chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, swished toward the destroyer across the blue harbor waters and the lieutenant commander reported by megaphone that the ship's casualties were slight.

"Well done, you all," the admiral said.

High Compliment To Associated Press

THE RIGHT to excel is being attacked in a suit brought by the government against the Associated Press in an effort to compel that newsgathering agency to supply service to "any newspaper willing to pay the cost."

For the purpose of better public understanding it may be explained that the Associated Press is a non-profit organization, made up of member newspapers which equitably share the costs of gathering and distributing news and features on a world-wide basis, with services confined to newspapers meeting strict requirements for membership.

While a high compliment is paid the Associated Press in the complainant's statement that "a newspaper which is barred from AP news operates at a competitive disadvantage," it is true that a number of papers have survived long and admirably under this alleged handicap and will probably continue to do so.

"Ability to pay" is among the minor considerations of Associated Press membership, as is the case in many other organizations from which individuals or groups may be barred at the discretion of members.

This action follows so closely the recent unsuccessful attempt to indict the Chicago Tribune on a charge of publishing a story allegedly of material value to the enemy, and failure of Marshall Field's newly established Chicago Sun to gain Associated Press membership, as to savor strongly of an attempt to punish the AP for its turndown of the pro-administration Sun and a further move against the Tribune, which is in disfavor with the New Deal administration.

The potentialities of such contentions as are set up by the government in this case are even more vital than appear in the issue itself, as patent protection operates on much the same basis—reward of initiative—and restraint of manufacture and sale of patented articles by other persons or firms is an obvious "competitive disadvantage."

There is also the matter of designated agencies for various commodities, which may be construed as a "competitive disadvantage" to other merchants who have access to similar articles but not to that particular one.

And what, for instance, is to be done, if, by chance, the Chicago Tribune happens to have a "star reporter" who can write a better big story than a Sun reporter, (purely hypothetical, of course)? Is the better story to be turned over to the competing newspaper for simultaneous publication? Most certainly—if there is to be no "competitive disadvantage."

And is membership in a fraternal organization to be gained by mandamus action after an applicant has been black-balled?

The ideas expressed by the petitioner in the action against the Associated Press are so out of accord with what have been generally regarded as guaranteed rights that this case should reach the United States supreme court as speedily as possible, for final determination.

You May Also Have Wondered

ABOUT four years ago, on State Route 39, between Lucas and Perrysville, what is known as the "Melco bridge" collapsed when it was hit by a heavy truck.

In due course, the state highway department, upon which responsibility rests, erected a temporary bridge to the east of the wrecked one, to serve as a detour until a new bridge could be built.

This cross-over—obviously intended to be temporary—is reached over a cindered roadway which leaves and returns to the main highway and makes a dangerous break in this much-traveled state route.

The state highway department, it appears, promises every now and then, to "do something about it"—but nothing is done, although money is available for such purposes and four years have passed since the old bridge was wrecked.

Such a bridge as the "temporary" one, if lined up with the highway, would serve needs for a number of years, in the event no materials are available to build what the state highway department regards as a "permanent" bridge—but the present make-shift shouldn't be allowed to go on year after year without protest.

Approaching Manpower Shortage

THAT a country with as many people as the United States should lack manpower is a new and rather disturbing idea. But this is in prospect. The government predicts that by the end of 1943 there will be 15,000,000 more people in war industries than there were on the day of Pearl Harbor.

Where are these new people to come from? Ten million, probably, will come from civilian industry. Then 1,400,000 will be young workers who have just come of age, and 1,800,000 others from groups unemployed at the start of the war. Farms will yield 700,000, and 600,000 will come from small businesses which they were formerly conducting themselves. This adds up to 14,500,000, and still leave us half a million short. No doubt they will be found. Women previously unemployed may fill the gap.

It is comforting to reflect that the Axis powers have already had much trouble on the same lines and are now trying to piece out with unwilling slave labor.

Protective Architecture

ONE of the most notable specimens of architecture seen in news pictures lately is a mobile navy hospital in Hawaii. A casual observer might not call it architecture at all. The walls and roof of the building are completely covered with sandbags, and the job has been done in a way that makes the building a work of art. Even the porch, lean-to and other accessory parts of the structure have their sandbag roofing arranged so neatly that the general effect is that of a new building type, designed by some bold innovator as a work of art. It may seem to have nothing beautiful in it, but it has form and symmetry that quickly hits the eye.

Many an observer must wonder, as he looks at that sandbag hospital, or others like it that are appearing now in many places, whether it represents the architecture of the future.

It is assumed, of course, that when a dollar-a-year man is fired he is given 4 cents in lieu of the customary two weeks' notice.

Unheard remark: "I've stopped playing those pinball machines so that I can buy more War Savings Stamps."

Vargas Program Has Aided Brazil

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Now that Brazil, of which he is president, is in the war against the Nazis and their allied Fascists, Getulio Vargas' personality is a matter of the liveliest interest in Washington.

It stands scrutiny pretty well. Getulio has been somewhat unflatteringly described as a dictator. Technically that seems to be what he is. Anyway, a few years ago, as what he considered part of his presidential duty, he abolished the then existing Brazilian constitution and congress and took exclusive charge of his country's policies, foreign and domestic, and of its economic development, as an unlimited chief executive.

It appears, though, that Brazil needed it. Maybe it was a dangerous remedy to prescribe for its ills, but it obviously was suffering from 'em.

In volume and variety of natural resources it's the richest area on earth, and bigger than the United States, as has been advertised often enough. It wasn't being developed, however.

Illustrative of the fashion in which its possibilities were being neglected, its Upper Amazon region simply overflows with wild rubber trees, which, to be sure, reguire cultivation to make 'em properly productive, but cultivation will do it, and it wasn't being attended to. It's promotion was one of the activities of which Getulio promptly took in hand and if, as dictator, he'd been on the job about a decade sooner, today Brazilians would be supplying us with all the rubber we're in the throes of such a famine for.

Vargas a Stimulant.

Resources that President Vargas COULD develop faster than he could develop rubber culture, he HAS developed faster.

Industrially he's simply multiplied the republic.

The fact is that Brazil's people are largely tropical folk, of a type that isn't overly enterprising. It needs stimulation to make it exert itself and prosper, and a stimulant is just what Getulio Vargas is.

Germans are the only foreigners who, for quite a while, have been really ambitious to exploit Brazil for their own benefit and for all they could get out of it.

Italians apparently didn't think of it. Spaniards and Portuguese couldn't finance any penetration worth speaking of.

Uncle Sam was just too dumb to get the idea until very lately.

But the Germans, away back in the kaiser's day, already were well advanced in their missionary work. They immigrated in formidable numbers, but they settled in a middling solid community, giving 'em local strength, and far to the southward, under favorable, temperate climatic conditions. There's no question that they aimed at control of Brazil in toto—probably not its formal transfer to Berlin's jurisdiction, but its complete German domination, virtually as a colony.

World War No. 1 delayed this program's fulfillment, but the German-Brazilian element began reorganizing it as soon as it could catch its breath after the Armistice, and was about ready for a coup when Getulio Vargas proclaimed his so-called dictatorship.

Herr Hitler at first was acquiescent, evidently believing he could make a stooge of Getulio, like Duce Mussolini or Pierre Laval.

Directly following his discovery, though, that Getulio was 100 per cent independent, Brazil's German colonists undertook to tell him "where to get off at," and Getulio suppressed 'em with a considerable number of casualties.

U. S. Indebted to Him.

If that wasn't a case in which a dictatorship was justifiable, it's hard to think of one where it could be.

Well, Getulio's been an economically constructive genius. In this respect he's benefitted Brazil, and the United States is indebted to him for a wealth of Brazilian production that he's developed. He's checkmated a German grab of his country—or at least a dangerous attempt at it. And he's created a tolerably formidable military machine. His small navy will require a lot of building up and his land force will need considerable training, but his aviation service, while not as large as some others, is, flyer for flyer, a crackerjack. Hopping across the 1,600-mile strait, from Brazilian Pernambuco to Vichy French-African Dakar, it's agreed that his airmen can be substantially useful to the United Nations.

Furthermore, he's helping greatly to solidify the world against the Axis—the morale item.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, August 31, 1922.

County Auditor's report showed steady decrease in livestock being raised on Richland county farms.

It was mentioned as a novelty that "car equipped with radio passed through Mansfield."

Rodney H. Parker, 61, died.

George L. Buell, South Diamond street, went to government hospital at Dayton for treatment.

Miss Mary E. Sweeney and Frederick Sharfenberger were married at St. Peter's church by Rev. F. A. Boehmleih.

Marie Prevost in "A Married Flapper" was screen attraction at the Park—"proving to the world that a flapper's heart can be true."

J. C. Wilson moved from 381 West Third street to Blymyer avenue.

Clarence Silcott, after a visit to other Ohio cities, was enthusiastic over the way traffic was handled in Mansfield.

TODAY IN HISTORY

General George B. McClellan was nominated for the presidency by the Democratic National convention on this date in 1864. Lincoln was re-elected in November by an electoral vote of 212 to 21, carrying every state but New Jersey, Delaware and Kentucky. His popular vote, however, was only 400,000 more than McClellan's in a total of 4,000,000.

Listen World!

Harvest

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(This is for those older ones who are wondering so often these days if life has been worth the living: if all their efforts and dreams and hopes are to be wasted in the horror of this war. It is for anyone, whether they are young or old, have children or not, who feel that they have come to the end of a one-way street.—Elsie.)

Her flesh is withered fruit:
The warm, blue fire of her eyes
Is dimmed by drudgery.
Upon her hair, that once was sunburnt gold,
The dull and plodding years
Of farming chores
Have left their ashen glaze
Her spirit, too, is gray—
Life seems so aimless
Since her children
Went away....
With slowing step she moves
About the house
Stopping, unconsciously,
To listen for the flying feet
That come no more,
The laughter that once echoed
Through the empty rooms;
Or, with the setting sun,
Sits on the sagging porch
And looks across the acres
Where young dreams once
flamed
And thinks it is too late,
To dream again—
Her day is done.

Those acres once
Were plowed and seeded,
Swelled to golden harvest
Every year—
And so she thought,
When once she, too, was young,
That all she gave
Of love and energy
Would come to harvest
In the years ahead.
But now she wonders
If her faith and dreams
All went for naught—
If all the seed she sowed
Was futile, mocking waste—
Since war has stripped her life
And left her lonely
As her empty fields.

She sits and mourns
For all that wasted seed—
And yet her sowing
Spreads across the world!
One son takes off
From far Australia's strand,
His bronzed face laughing
Under fighting wings;
Another flings
His tank 'cross Libyan sand;
Another guards old England;
One girl stands
Beside a moving belt
That builds a plane;
Another serves the pain
Of mangled men, somewhere
In Chinese land;
And one, the youngest,
Lies asleep
In wrecked Bataan.

Her flesh is withered fruit;
She thinks her day is done;
And yet her seed
Has spread to every land—
From out her simple dreams
And quiet chores
Has sprung a harvest
Which shall save the world!

Boast of Reaching Highest Peak Displays Nazi Superman Lunacy

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

THE HITLERITE CLAIM to have planted the Nazi flag atop the Caucasus range's Mount Elbrus, highest peak in Europe, presents an interesting study in Prussian psychology.

Perhaps one might better describe it as a psychopathic problem, since it has to do with the psychosis which has resulted in the Deutschland-uber-allies mentality and the more recent belief in the super-human qualities of the Aryan race.

It should be said in fairness that this mountain-climbing stunt isn't entirely due to the March hare fanaticism which produced that horrid abnormality known as Naziism. It has no military importance, of course, because if it was carried out at all it was by a handful of mountaineers. Still, it isn't a bad bit of advertising.

The idea of such a feat is (1) to demonstrate that the reich always is on top, (2) to give a display of Nazi prowess and fearlessness, and (3) to create in the other fellow an inferiority complex which has him forever looking up at the Prussian. In some quarters that type of propaganda works.

Still, the propaganda angle is only an incidental part of the story, and in order to develop our thesis we should take a further look at the Nazi mountain-climbing penchant. Elbrus isn't the first height they have scaled in this war, or before it. They're always climbing—and they're good at it.

One of the first things they did on entering Paris was to mount to the top of the Eiffel Tower and fly the swastika. Not satisfied with that, they stuck their flag on Napoleon Bonaparte's grand Arc de Triomphe.

WHEN the Nazis stormed their way into Greece last year they immediately hot-footed it to the home of the ancient Greek gods on Mount Olympus and there planted Herr Hitler's emblem. The highest point in Athens is the Acropolis and naturally the swastika was unfurled there.

And so it goes. Herr Hitler's favorite retreat is his mansion high in the Bavarian Alps at Berchtesgaden, and nearby is the home of his crown prince, Reichsmarshal Herman Goering. That gets 'em as near to heaven as they ever will be unless, as United States Senator Pepper (I believe it was he) has declared, we hang the fuehrer "higher than Haman" after the war.

Now the mere fact that a chap likes to climb mountains doesn't mean that he has brain-storms, but the idea of dominating the world as a superior being is a Prussian characteristic. It's the same thing which used to make the Prussian army officer knock ordinary civilians off the sidewalk as he swanked by, and which bred the insufferable arrogance for which the Prussian is notorious.

NAZIISM is the bedeveled spirit of Prussianism. Hitler—sometimes erroneously called Schnickelgruber because that was the name of paternal ancestors—isn't a Prussian by birth. He is an Austrian, but from his boyhood the Prussians have been his ideals, and it is recorded that as a youngster he used to dream of the time when all Europe would be ruled by such a race.

That dream has persisted until we have his distorted ambition to rule the world and make all other peoples literally the slaves of the Prussians. We see him carrying this out in Europe right now. He must be on top, looking down.

He has made this unholy doctrine an integral part of Naziism, and to my mind this goes far toward explaining the unnatural features of the climbing complex. The scaling of the heights to attract attention helps satisfy an ugly desire.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The Capital In Wartime:

Leave it to Leon Henderson to get the job of price administration done in spite of those drastic cuts in budget dealt him by Congress.

One of the biggest circularization jobs in the country is now in progress. Into every home must go that simple little double-faced brochure titled "What You Should Know About Wartime Price Control." To mail it would cost a million or so. To circulate it by hand, if the hands were paid, would cost more than that. So what. So Henderson prints at the bottom of his pamphlet the brief line: "Distributed by the Office of Civilian Defense and the Boy Scouts of America." And the job is done.

Incidentally, the pamphlet answers one of the questions I have been most frequently asked in recent weeks: What should I do if I think I'm being overcharged?

In case you haven't received yours, the answer is: "First, talk it over in a friendly way with your shopkeeper. Don't try to be a policeman. Leave that to the OPA.

"If you are confident you are being charged too much, ask for a sales slip. Write to the nearest OPA office or to your War Price and Rationing board (after it announces it is ready to receive complaints). Give the name of the store, date of purchase, price paid by you or asked by the store, the ceiling price, if one is posted, name and make of the article, as well as size and weight or other specifications. Enclose the sales slip or receipt. Explain why you think you were overcharged. And give your name and address."

THE CIO has chased the Republican national committee right out of the house.

There really are no political implications involved. It's just that the CIO has bought the building at 718 Jackson Place Northwest and told the tenant National Republican Committee to vacate. The item would hardly be worth recording if this weren't wartime Washington and office space weren't at such a premium. The G. O. P. national headquarters is up against it.

THE Navy really went into a Hollywood huddle in picking that title, "WAVES," for their women's auxiliary.

The simple title was, of course, Women's Naval Auxiliary Corps, or perhaps with the second and third words reversed. But in these days of alphabet agencies, that came down to WNACs or WANCs. The first was unpronouncable. The second sounded like the bellow of a bullfrog with a Texas twang.

Women's Reserve of the Naval Reserve was also considered and discarded World war I had proved that "yeomanettes" (which was what women serving with the Navy were called in those days) didn't catch on, and besides in the present set-up the ratings were to be different.

It was days before some one came up with that "WAVES," and the whole Navy started breathing easier. They got it by that round-Robin Hood's-barn method of designating them: Women Appointed for Volunteer Emergency Service. Whoever thought that up (the Navy won't tell but his name is Lieut. Jack Allen) must have started with "waves" and worked back.

Man About Manhattan

Average Family

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The show that ought to be dedicated to the Average American Family is "Count Me In," a musical comedy that is still in rehearsal form. It won't hit Broadway until Sept. 21.

But when the average American family gets around to seeing it, I think they're going to vote it the smartest and certainly the most apt piece of foolishness to come out of the war.

The theme of "Count Me In" is this: what happens to a family in war time? Well, mama becomes a sergeant (only dirty politics kept her from being a Lt. Col.) in the WVVVVC's. Daughter is a Red Cross worker, and brother is an air raid warden. Only the old man, whom nobody ever notices, takes no part in the great struggle for human liberty. All he does is buy the war stamps his children paste into their books, purchase the uniforms his wife and sons and daughters wear, and remain at home, neglected, wishing he could do something to help win the war too. When he goes to smoke, his daughter snatches away his cigars because soldiers must have something to smoke. Somebody else takes his cuff-clips (he's given up his car to ride a bike) for the metal drive. That's the way it goes. The old man is Charles Butterworth, imported from the west coast for the part. It looks like a lollopaluza.

IT TAKES a long time, sometimes, to sing just the right note to get people on street corners talking about you, but Wilbur Evans—after ten years and more—has arrived at that stage. You'll find him in "The New Moon," operetta revival at Carnegie Hall. When he was first heard in "The Chocolate Soldier" everybody began asking who he was and where he had been all their lives. The answer is this: Wilbur has sung in every state in the U. S. except North Dakota. Once he sang on a ten weeks' radio contract with Jeanette MacDonald. He's been all over, from coast to coast. He's glad people have at last caught on.

The Doughboy who left his heart at the Stage Door Canteen may have left his overcoat there too. Some doughboys have left more than that. In any case the cloak room at the Canteen is being overtaxed by left-over articles of government issue, checked there but never reclaimed by soldiers. There are overseas caps, belts, overcoats, jackets and raincoats. What happens to soldiers who lose wearing apparel? If they have to pay for it they had better communicate with the officials of the Stage Door Canteen.

A Farmer's Diary

Cash for Cucumbers

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"IF you plant an acre of pickles," the two boys told me, eagerly, "we'll take care of half that much. Let's put out an acre and a half and see who'll do the best!"

That was one night last winter when snow was drifting over frozen ground. When the man from the pickle company came, in the spring, I happened to be away—so they took seed for that acreage.

The field was plowed, disked and made ready in mid-June. The boys, 11 and 7, pushed a seeder along rows marked with stakes. They had three rows, and had used one third of the seed, when it began to rain. They told me, grinning, that the rest was mine.

It rained and rained. Between showers, I marked my acre into hills eight feet apart, and put a handful of fertilizer into each, mixing it well . . . then a half dozen seeds. I had ten rows of hills. A chipmunk or a mole worked, too—eating the seeds before they had time to sprout. I planted part of the field the third time. That was after the fourth of July.

By then, though, the first hills were showing the third leaf, and my small competitors complained that theirs did not grow right, and were turning yellow.

I suggested that a load of manure worked in along the rows with hoes might correct the trouble, and rid their vines of weeds at the same time. So they hoed and hauled and sprinkled with lime and arsenate.

When the deep green rows began to extend tendrils and show yellow blossoms near the center, the pickle inspector came . . . and said theirs were better than mine. They were elated.

He showed them how to train the vines into the row, and how to lift them to get all the pickles as soon as they were ready.

Now the straight green rows are matted—a pretty sight. Broad tender leaves shield myriads of bell-shaped yellow blossoms, where bees buzz from dawn to dusk. The little boys go up and down the rows with baskets and gather their harvest.

With abundant rain and warm autumn days they seem to grow over night from infant blossoms to picking size. The first grade of pickles brings $3 per hundred weight at a cannery's station, in a neighboring village.

I hauled the first hundred there and saw many other farmers piling bags and baskets of pickles upon the platform. They were tanned men with gnarled hands, humped shoulders and curved backs. I tried to straighten my own protesting back, as I climbed from my car. "How many did you bring?" I asked a neighbor.

"Sixteen bushels," he replied, his broad rough hands upon his hips. "My wife and boy and I picked 'em all today. It's a good cash crop, all right—but it ain't easy money."

CHAPTER XII

It seemed innocent enough—Guy's arrival. He came along about 5:30 with raincoats for Daphne and Amy over his arm. As he entered the music filled little room he sniffed just as Paul had done and said, "Spice cakes and coffee!"

Mama Eckert was flustered at first. After all, wasn't he Guy Dillingham, head of the big Dillingham company? She smoothed her apron; her smile, through the thick tortoise shell rimmed spectacles, was apologetic.

Papa Eckert stopped the phonograph. But Guy said, "Oh, please don't. It's so restful after a day downtown."

To Mama Eckert he said, with his shy, winning smile, "Please—may I stay awhile? And couldn't I have what the others had to eat?"

In the kitchen, getting her best silver coffee percolator down from the top shelf—she wouldn't serve Mr. Dillingham from the graniteware one she'd used for Paul and Amy—Mama Eckert whispered to Amy, "He's grand, isn't he?" Then she added what Paul had once said, "I don't see how Frani got him . . . Not that Frani isn't all right," she amended hastily. "I love Frani. But he's so good. He could have anybody."

"Didn't you ever see him before?" Amy asked.

Mama Eckert shook her head. "No. Frani wasn't living with us when she met him. She had a radio job and she'd moved into an apartment with another girl . . . Maybe now when she finds out he likes us she'll come to see us."

She didn't say it bitterly, just wonderingly. "Frani's been good to us," she assured Amy. "She sends me such nice things for the house. And she's sent Papa some of his best opera records—three whole operas, I think. That's pretty nice because Frani doesn't like operas. She likes jazz and swing music."

When they returned to the living room, Guy was sitting beside Papa Eckert in the bay window, the smooth brown head close to the tousled white one as they bent over records. But they were not talking of music. Guy was saying, "And so you're an engraver. At the watch works here?"

Amy looked at Papa Eckert's hand, thin and white, but a little swollen at the joints, she was ashamed that she had not inquired about his work.

"Engraving's my trade too," Guy was saying. "It gives me a safe feeling to know that I have it to fall back on if I should lose my money."

And now he was talking of the hands of an engraver. "You have to take care of them. I know a doctor who could help you. He's the best I know for your trouble, and his fees are low."

He had taken a card from his pocket and was scribbling a name on it. Amy was thinking, "His fees are low because you will go to see him first. But you'll manage it so that the Eckert's will never suspect."

After they had talked, Papa Eckert said, "I am getting old. I do not let myself think much about it. I had a son."

His eyes sought a picture hanging between two windows, a faded photograph on a postcard of a boy in khaki with a jaunty A. E. F. cap on one side of his blond head. Evidently it had been taken in southern France for there was a palm tree in the background. Then he turned to Mama Eckert and for a second the flame of a pain that would never die flickered in his eyes and hers.

"I do not know why—maybe it too, is because I'm getting old—but I'm sure that when Paul goes, he will come back."

"Perhaps he won't be called," Mama Eckert suggested timidly.

"Oh, but he will be; I know that too," he insisted gently. "And he will come back."

"I won't be called though," Paul said lightly. "If anything happens to us I shall enlist."

"Have you told Marcia that?" Guy asked.

"Marcia?" Mama Eckert questioned. "Who's Marcia?"

There was an uncomfortable silence. Then Mama Eckert said, "Of course! She's the daughter of the man that sent you to Europe."

Another silence. Then Guy said, "She's the girl Paul's engaged to."

There was somehow a suggestion of reproof in his casual tone. Amy couldn't look at Paul. She looked instead at Mama Eckert. To her dismay, she saw an expression of sympathy on the broad kind face.

She was glad that Guy suggested almost immediately that they go home, and glad too that Paul didn't go with them. Guy's cool announcement had raised a barrier between them.

Frani met them at the door just as she had on the other occasion when the three of them had returned from the zoo. But this time there was nothing expectant or little girlish in her attitude. She looked like a gypsy in a red and blue print dress with exuberant skirts and mammoth red chiffon sleeves. Her mass of dark hair was tied back with a red ribbon that had slipped rakishly over one eyebrow. She greeted them with a laugh.

"And where have you been in the rain?"

Guy was carrying Daphne who had gone to sleep on the ride home. He placed her down on a couch before he said, "We've been to Mama Eckert's."

"You what?" A swordlike shrillness pierced the velvet huskiness of Frani's voice.

"We went to see the Eckerts," he repeated patiently. "Miss Tudor and Daphne went to the zoo. They met Mama Eckert there. She invited them to her house. I went there to meet them and bring them home."

Frani's eyes blazed. The flush in her cheeks mounted. Looking over Frani's shoulder Amy could see a litter of glasses in the living room, on the mantle, on the floor, on the arms of chairs. The cocktail hour had gone far beyond an hour.

"You're my employe," she said to Amy. "What do you mean by taking my daughter out without asking my permission?"

"It was my suggestion," Guy said. "I had planned to meet them at the zoo. But when Miss Tudor phoned me that it was raining and asked if they might go to the Eckerts."

"Oh, so you telephoned my husband," Frani interrupted. "Isn't that just too . . . too . . . of course we don't have any telephones in the house!"

"You were downtown," Amy reminded her. "And since Mr. Dillingham had planned to join us—"

"That's nice too! Big business men always accompany their wives' maids on trips to the zoo."

"Frani!" Guy's voice was still soft but it was the softness of controlled agner.

"Baloney!" Frani shouted. "You know as well as I do that Miss Tudor should have asked me! She was trying to make a fool of me! She was trying to show me up by having you meet Mama Eckert."

"Mama Eckert is a very fine person," Guy said. "I'm sorry that in all these years I haven't met her."

Amy couldn't understand the mood that came over Frani then. She stared at Guy wide-eyed. Then she burst into wild, gasping laughter. "Oh you can't! That's funny! That's terribly funny! . . . You don't understand why you haven't met Mama Eckert. You don't know why I don't see her myself! Oh, but that's funny! . . . Don't you wish you knew! It's a good thing you don't. Men are such fools. So are women. They're worse fools than men! . . . This is something to laugh at."

She leaned back against a gold-threaded tapestry, a lovely bedraggled picture, and laughed and laughed until her laughter turned into sobbing. "Why do you look at me like that—as if I was something the cat brought in?"

Guy glanced apprehensively into the living room and Amy saw the white coat of Hanver, the butler, disappearing in the direction of the kitchen. Then Margaret, the second maid, moved across the lower end of the hall.

Daphne stirred and opened her eyes.

"I'll take her upstairs," Amy suggested.

Inside she seethed with anger and distaste, but there was nothing she could say or do just then. She tried to pick Daphne up, but she was heavy, far too heavy for Amy.

"Here, I'll take her," Frani lurched toward them, still laughing horribly.

"Leave her alone. Don't you touch her," Guy commanded. "Here, Margaret'll help you."

Margaret came then and took the youngster in her strong arms. As she followed her up the stairs Amy heard Frani cry, "Why didn't you marry someone like her! It's too bad you didn't meet her sooner."

Margaret made a clucking sound with her tongue. Later when Amy was undressing Daphne, pulling off her shoes and half socks, turning the sleeping child over on her side so that she could unbutton her dress, Margaret said in her slow, placid way:

"She isn't a heavy drinking woman—Mrs. Dillingham, I mean. But when she gets mad at him she'll do it. And he can't understand. It's too bad! And such a lovely child as they've got too!"

When Amy had tucked Daphne into bed with a gingham giraffe on the pillow beside her, Guy came in and stood looking down at his small daughter. Then very gently he leaned over and kissed Daphne. The youngster made a funny little face, wrinkling her snub nose.

"Thank you for being so nice to her," he said to Amy. I realize that you won't want to go on with all this now. I can hardly blame you. But I wish—"

His voice trailed away and Amy forgot to ask him what he wished. She was staring, shocked, at the red marks on his cheek, four long scratches that looked as though four fingers had clawed him.

He lifted his hand to his face self-consciously, then dropped it quickly. His manner was formal, as though Amy were a stranger. "I'm sorry for all that has occurred tonight. I know Mrs. Dillingham will feel differently in the morning."

Amy was sorry for him—so sorry that for a second she forgot her own sense of hurt and outrage—so sorry that she forgot even Paul.

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., President
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company
Firestone Park Plant
Akron, Ohio

Dear Mr. Firestone:

This is to inform you that the Army and Navy are conferring upon the Firestone Park Plant of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company the Army-Navy Production Award for high achievement in the production of war equipment.

This award is the nation's tribute to the spirit of patriotism and production effort of the Firestone Park Plant and its employees. The men and women of that plant have every reason to be proud of their great work in backing up our soldiers on the fighting fronts.

In conferring this award the Army and Navy will present a flag to be flown above the plant, and will give to every member of that organization a pin which they may wear as a symbol of their permanent contribution to those plants which are exceeding all production expectations in view of the facilities at their command.

I have full confidence that your present high achievement is indicative of what you and your employees will do in the future.

Sincerely yours,

Robert P. Patterson

Saturday evening, Mrs. E. C. Hughes and Mrs. Bertha Fischer, 254 South Adams street, entertained at the latter's home in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Willard R. Jackson, who were married in Covington, Ky., Aug. 22. The bride was the former Betty McQuillen and the hostesses are her aunts.

The evening was spent playing cards with prizes being won by Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. James Logsdon and Mrs. Harry Boyer, jr. Appointments for the luncheon served at one large and one small table were pink lighted tapers, lavender flowers and yellow favors with a wedding cake on the large table.

Guests showered the couple with miscellaneous gifts and the hostesses presented them with a gift of crystal. The bridegroom is leaving for the army Tuesday.

Prizes Awarded To Possum Run Women Golfers

Second flight—Mrs. R. Seymour, Mrs. Ralph Bisbee; Mrs. Israel Dillon, Mrs. Howard Straub; Mrs. John Newcomer, Mrs. Foster Bell; Mrs. Dean Eckert, bye. Third flight—Mrs. L. J. Bonar, Mrs. R. E. Frush, Mrs. G. C. Wehinger, Mrs. Clifford Heston; Mrs Elmer Hedeen, Mrs. John Daley; Mrs. F. C. Jacobs, Mrs. Alden Heath; Mrs. L. W. Kaufman, Mrs. Denzil Morgan, Mrs. H. L. Frick, Mrs R. F. Flood.

Gloves Give Smart Note of Color

Top left, washable doeskin for daytime wear; below, glace leather for the suit; right, long white gloves.

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer

In a wartime period that of necessity demands simpler fashions, the use of all things which add a decidedly feminine touch to day and evening costumes is bound to be accented.

This means that gloves will be used even more than they usually are in the fall and winter season, to add smart notes of color contrast or white to the well-cut dresses and evening clothes that are going to be worn throughout the country.

Since the time of knights in armor gloves have always had a sentumental and romantic significance, and this season when American feeling is running high and women want to be most alluring for the men who are on furlough, the glove is going to be a big fashion point in every ensemble.

White Very Popular.

White gloves are among those that will be particularly popular, not only because they give a fresh and dressy air and can be worn with any color or with black, but also because the authorities have recommended wearing something white for winter blackouts as a safety measure.

The three styles shown in the above photographs were designed by Kislav, and give an idea of the correct types to be worn for all occasions.

The gloves to be worn with a suit are made of glace leather and are washable They are short but comfortable gauntlets, and will go well with winter coats later on.

Long white gloves add a touch of distinction that counts when worn with afternoon dresses. These are luxuriously soft and flattering to the hands, and they are washable so they can be worn day after day.

The third glove is a classic slip-on. It is made of washable doeskin, and is a favorite with busy women for daytime wear.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I WILL listen quietly," Noel promised, but his heavy voice gave little assurance of his ceasing to resent the patriotic service which Mary had rendered her country at my father's request.

"Thank you," I answered, then plunged into the story of the vital secret paper, which, my father had learned, was to be passed that night to Redfield, and of his urgent demand that Mary find out if possible where it was hidden.

I did not gloss over the methods Mary had used, but I tried to make Noel see that she had been protected every minute of the time she spent with the actor.

"My father took most elaborate precautions," I told him. "One of his men ate at the table next to Mary's, and another drove the taxi that took them to the restaurant.

Mary In No Danger.

"By keen perception Mary deduced that Redfield had hidden the document in his shoe, and she knew she must get him up to this room and into my father 's power as soon as possible; also that she ran no risk in granting his plea to come up here for another drink, because my father and I were here."

In his bewilderment Noel broke his promise not to interrupt.

"But you weren't here with Mary when she opened the door," he said. "If you had heard the insulting way he spoke to her, you wouldn't wonder at my knocking him down. If Uncle Dicky hadn't grabbed me I'd have killed him—and I wish I had."

"No you don't wish anything

"No, you don't wish anything ly, "or you won't when you come to your senses. And let me assure you that we did hear what he said. We rushed into the bedroom when he knocked on the outer door, but left the door ajar. We both knew Mary was counting on Steve being so near the passing out stage that one more drink would send him under the table, so that my father could deal with him. And then you rushed in."

"Thank God I was in time to keep Mary from having to listen to any more of his drunken beastliness," he said, concern for Mary displacing his anger at her.

"You were just in time to render my father an unexpected service," I said.

"I don't understand—" Noel began, but my father's entrance interrupted him.

"My dear boy!" my father said, clapping Noel on the shoulder. He told me later that he expected sullen resentment and was much relieved when Noel showed only bewilderment. "You certainly saved the day when you knocked that — that—polecat unconscious he went on. "We hoped another drink would do the trick. But due to you, we had no delay in finding that important paper, and when Redfield recovers consciousness, he will have only a humiliating experience to remember, instead of a pleasant drinking bout.

Hopes To Learn More.

"Another most important count is this. When he comes to in the next apartment, where we are keeping him for the night, he'll be so befogged that one of my operatives, posing as a nurse, may be able to glean some further valuable information from his mutterings. My physician assures me that he will be a bit delirious"

I knew I was breaking one of my father's rules by asking a question at this point, but I could not keep from uttering it because of my concern for Mary.

"What is he going to do when he misses that document from his shoe?" I asked "Won't he deduce that Mary must have found out about it, and was responsible for its disappearance?"

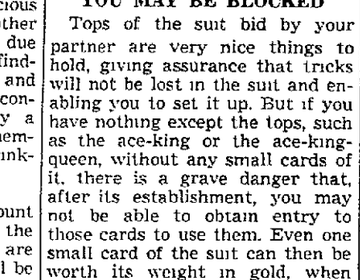
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU MAY BE BLOCKED

Tops of the suit bid by your partner are very nice things to hold, giving assurance that tricks will not be lost in the suit and enabling you to set it up. But if you have nothing except the tops, such as the ace-king or the ace-king-queen, without any small cards of it, there is a grave danger that, after its establishment, you may not be able to obtain entry to those cards to use them. Even one small card of the suit can then be worth its weight in gold, when you are playing a No Trump contract or one in a different suit.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

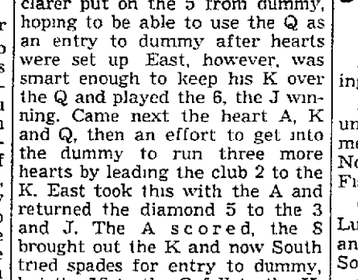
South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT

Because of his even distribution, with no doubleton or shorter holding in his hand, South felt that the same number of tricks should be makable in No Trumps as at hearts. So, since only nine tricks are enough for a No Trump game, whereas ten are needed in the major, he based his decision of that factor, especially in view of his diamond K and club Q and his desire to have the lead come up to them, instead of through them.

How valuable one little card in hearts would have been. If South could have traded the heart Q for either the 4 or 3 held by West and East respectively, his No Trump game would have been easy. But unfortunately the rules don't allow that.

West led the spade 4. The declarer put on the 5 from dummy, hoping to be able to use the Q as an entry to dummy after hearts were set up East, however, was smart enough to keep his K over the Q and played the 6, the J winning. Came next the heart A, K and Q, then an effort to get into the dummy to run three more hearts by leading the club 2 to the K. East took this with the A and returned the diamond 5 to the 3 and J. The A scored, the 8 brought out the K and now South tried spades for entry to dummy, but the 10 to the Q fell to the K, and the dummy was dead. Two diamonds followed, setting him two tricks.

If South on his final turn had bid 4-Hearts, after hearing North show his strength with a rebid of the suit, game would have been unstopable. Two tricks could have been lost in diamonds and one in clubs, but the working of the spade finesse would have made game safe.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If South bids hearts and diamonds and North bids spades and clubs, what is the soundest lead by East against North's venturesome 7-Spades on this deal?

Relatives attending the wedding from out of the city were from Shelby, Shelby Settlement, and Bucyrus.

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 1

An excellent opportunity may be presented on this day for deriving very definite, probably surprising or peculiar benefits by means of cleverness, shrewdness, strategem, intrigue and faculties and forces seemingly operating from the realm of the so-called "fourth dimension." There may be either premonitions, insistent urges or compulsions, or "hunches" to do things seemingly impractical, idealistic or unwarranted but these will prove of solid worth and success

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of peculiar, strange and unaccountable experiences, although these will culminate in definite advantages and benefits. There may be inner guidings, strong intuitions or premonitions, or psychic urges, which may seem to move on dangerous grounds These may, however, lead to success, ambitious transactions with secret orders, large corporations, diplomatic or political bodies. In all be alert to duplicity, imposition of glamorous intrigues. The ideals, soul aspirations and mystical tendencies may find practical expression in art, music, poetry or literature.

A child born on this day may have many talents of a creative and idealistic turn, culminating in exceptional success. Its intuitions, mystical and psychic urges may be the mainspring to practical progress.

AUTO METHODS TO SAVE MONEY FOR TAXPAYERS

Mass Production to Slash Millions Off Nation's War Bill.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—The war-busy automotive industry has some good news for the nation's taxpayers, many of whom are apt to become jittery whenever they contemplate next year's levy by the government.

Briefly, it's this: application of time-saving, mass production methods to the job of fabricating weapons of war is slashing millions of dollars off the nation's gigantic war bill.

The industry's contributions in the interests of economy are important because it is pledged to produce 75 per cent of America's aircraft engines; more than half of the diesel engines for the navy; more than a third of the machine guns for the army; more than 40 per cent of the tanks and tank parts; all of the army's military vehicles and dozens of other big and little pieces which fighting men need to win a war.

Here are examples of how the industry is trimming costs on its various war projects:

One automotive company began building marine engines for the navy early in 1939 at a cost of nearly $30,000 each. Later the engine was placed upon a volume production basis and cost was reduced 9 per cent. As output and efficiency increased, cost was slashed $10,000 or 37 per cent below the original price for each unit.

Another firm began building automatic cannon 18 months ago at a cost of about $1,200. Within six months more than $250 was shaved from the original price. Today the price to the government is nearly 40 per cent lower.

Still another company, working on a wing-panel operation for a bomber, saved 75 per cent of the man hours originally required on the project. At the same time it reduced cost of each wing set by $1,000.

Similar savings are reported for machine guns, shells and other ordnance materials.

What processes make these substantial savings possible?

By using the upset-forge process instead of the traditional pierce and draw method of making shells, one company tooled up to produce 1,000,000 large shells. It turned out its second million shells in 55 days, its third million in 35 days. Subsequently, it sliced additional days from the time quota.

Another company, making an anti-aircraft gun of foreign design, swung into production seven months after receiving the order. This cut four months from the time required by the company that invented the gun and 80 days from the time needed by a leading British manufacturer. Time and cost were saved when the auto manufacturer obtained permission to broach instead of rifle the barrel. This cut the manufacturing time for this part from 3½ hours to 15 minutes.

These are only a few of the countless examples of how engineering ingenuity can save time, materials and money.

Says There Will Be Ample Wheat Flour for Bakers

NEW ORLEANS — (INS) — Despite all the problems of the emergency, bakers are sure of one thing—it won't be necessary to mix substitutes with wheat flour in order to make enough bread.

So Russell W. Varney of New York told a convention of bakers from three states in New Orleans.

In World War I, he pointed out, corn meal, rice meal, banana meal and other substitutes were employed in combination with wheat flour.

But this time there is plenty of wheat and instead of substitues, "the government is now hammering on fortifying the flour we have with the vitamin-containing ingredients which produce what the public knows as 'enriched bread'," Varney said.

DONATES CURLS IN WAR EFFORT

11-Year-Old Gives Tresses for Army Instruments.

MILTON, Mass. —(U.P.)— Little Judith Grosse gave the war effort a lift by having her hair cut.

When the 11-year-old girl heard that blond hair was used in the manufacture of vital precision instruments, such as hydrographs, she had a barber clip her 12-inch tresses and turned them over to civilian defense officials.

Now she holds a certificate testifying her contribution to the war.

Life Prisoner Does His Bit for Boys In Service

BOSTON — (INS) — A lifer at Charleston state prison is doing his bit to provide recreation for the boys in the service, according to Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of correction.

The prisoner is Frank Festo, 49, of Waterbury, Conn., who was convicted of murder in 1923.

Festo has made and donated 500 copper "V for Victory" pins, to be sold at 25 cents each. Proceeds will go to the Chaplain's fund and be used to purchase material for checker boards and other games for service men.

Copper for the pins was bought by Festo with money he himself earned in prison. The game boards are being made by other inmates at the prison.

WESTERN KILLER JUMPED ROPE

MALDEN, Mass.—(INS)—Pshaw, "Wild Bill" Hickok used to jump rope and play mumbley peg.

That terror of the midwestern plains, whose shooting exploits have become legend, used to like nothing better than to play with the six young children of a Kansas farm-house, and often sighed how he'd like to marry and settle down with a family.

Franklin A. Thomas, who moved east some years ago, likes to tell how "Wild Bill" lived with us for some two or three weeks at a time. He would call to see us when he was watching or looking for horse thieves or desperadoes around Wichita."

When he had time to relax, "Wild Bill" would play "mumbley peg, run and jump rope and play with us children as though he were one of us."

SENDS MOTHER WORD OF FIGHT

Says "Gibraltar Won't Falter" In Message For Home.

RIVERSIDE, Cal.—(U.P.)—A simple cable received by Mrs. Caroline Yoch Barnet from her son might well become a World War II slogan.

Pilot Officer Redmond Burnet of the RAF gave a nutshell description of his experiences and observations in his message, which read simply:

"Gibraltar won't falter."

USE TIN CANS FOR AUTO TAGS

Vermont Devises Plan To Replace Former Metal Supply.

MONTPELIER, Vt. —(U.P.)— Resourceful Vermont won't need any steel this year for its 1943 automobile registration plates.

The state registry of motor vehicles has developed an ingenious method of rolling and cutting old tin cans to obtain tabs to cover the 1942 markings. Thus motorists will use their present plates with the tabs.

The empty tin cans are obtained from state institutions and the state prison is furnishing the labor for making the tabs.

The tomb of Ulysses S. Grant in New York was built by popular subscription at a cost of $600,000.

Zediker Wins Westbrook Golf Title Over Moorhead

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

A letter from their old coach, Lieut. Bud Houghton of the Navy air corps, may be the tip-off on just what Massillon's Mighty Men will have to offer in the way of opposition for their grid foes, including Mansfield high school, this fall.

I didn't get the letter. Jim Schlemmer of the Akron Beacon-Journal did, but if you have no scruples against reading other people's mail—well, let's look into it and see what we can learn. Says last year's Massillon mentor:

* * *

DEAR JIM: I have just had a letter from Red Bird and he tells me you rate his new band as good or better than ever. I would certainly enjoy seeing them strut and hearing them "Hold That Tiger" once again.

I certainly miss my Massillon kids about this time of year. This time last August we were in Canada with the boys, fishing, swimming and having a grand time together.

That trip served to mold the team and coaching staff together in a unity of feeling and purpose. I'll never forget that squad of boys; Massillon had had many teams which were superior from a personnel standpoint but none more determined and courageous.

Ed Kammer has a fine nucleus to start this season with but the future of his team depends a great deal upon how well his cripples such as Cardinal, Bob Wallace and Karl Paulik round into playing condition.

Nothing could please me more than to see them come through with 10 straight victories and another state championship.

We are starting football practice here today—Monday at the navy pre-flight school at University of Iowa—and I am coaching one squadron team and have Red Cumiskey, former Ohio State end and more recently coach at Columbus Aquinas as my assistant.

There are 12 squadrons, with anywhere from 25 to 30 cadets on each team. You can imagine what the vast play area around the station will look like, with all these squads plus the varsity squad practicing at the same time.

The setup here, which Col. Bernie Bierman has devised, is much like our junior high system back in Massillon, with the squadron teams acting as feeders to the varsity.

I expect to do some scouting for the varsity and I may get out Ohio way some time this fall. Hope to have a session with you then. There are four other Ohio men who are head coaches of squadron football teams here. They are Fritz Heisler, Charley Ream, Fred Stalcup, a former assistant to Doc Spears at Toledo, and Art Wright. You know them all—Heisler from Massillon and Ohio State Ream from Ohio State and Wright from Wadsworth high. We should have a lot of fun competing against each other. With best wishes, BUD HOUGHTON, Lieut. J. G., Navy Pre Flight School, Iowa City.

* * *

Ah, ha! So Bud took his Tigers to Canada last summer, eh! Maybe that letter wasn't meant for public perusal after all. But Jim printed it.

BUCYRUS GRIDDERS SCORE 2 TOUCHDOWNS

BUCYRUS—Coach Nick Wasylik of the Bucyrus High school Redmen today announced his probable first team lineup. The team in a 20-minute practice scrimmage Saturday marked up two touchdowns against a picked team of reserves.

In the lineup are Volk and J. Shuck, ends; Gatchell and Gabriel, tackles; Rittenour and Teets, guards; Chandler, center; Clayton, quarter; Davis and C. Shuck, halfbacks and Teynor, fullback.

Bucyrus Redmen will open the season Sept. 18 with Tiffin Columbian here.

COLLEGE ALL-STARS MEET PHILADELPHIA

Cardinals Remain In Flag Race

Brooklyn Lead Cut To Only Three Games.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LIKE cuffless trousers and ceiling prices, that pennant duel between the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals—which most folks figured would get here sooner or later—finally has arrived.

* * *

After coasting along in the comparative safety of a lengthy lead through most of the National League campaign, the Dodgers found themselves separated from the threatening Cardinals today by three short games.

* * *

The Cardinals started the Dodgers down the hill, but the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates also got in a couple of licks, and plenty of other snipers probably are waiting.

The Dodgers fired both barrels at the Pirates yesterday and came away with nothing better than an even break, while the Cardinals swept a doubleheader with the Boston Braves for a total of 19 victories in 22 games.

Whitlow Wyatt pitched the Dodgers to a 3-1 decision in the opener, but the Bucs pounded Larry French and three relievers for a dozen hits in the nightcap and triumphed, 9-5.

* * *

The Cardinals beat the Braves, 8-3, in their first game, snapping a tie with a five-run outburst in the sixth. The second, however, went 11 innings before Harry Gumbert, who pitched two-hit ball in five innings of relief, doubled for the run that won for him and the Cards, 3-2.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phils, 2-0 and 8-5, with Johnny Vander Meer hurling the shutout.

The New York Giants downed the Chicago Cubs, 8-6, in the first game, but the second ended in a 5-5 deadlock with darkness halting play after nine innings, during which Manager Mel Ott of the Giants made the 2,500th hit of his major league career.

In the American League, the St. Louis Browns helped take some of the pressure off the New York Yankees by splitting with the Boston Red Sox while the Yanks were winning a pair from the Detroit Tigers.

Red Ruffing pitched five-hit ball to beat the Tigers, 7-1, in the first game. A tenth inning single by pinch hitter George Selkirk decided the second for the Yanks, 4-3. Outfielder Tommy Henrich, making his last appearance before entering the coast guard, led the Yankee attack in the second game with three hits in three official times at bat.

John Niggeling hurled the Browns to a 4-1 first game victory, beating the Red Sox for the fifth time this year. The Sox bounced back to take the second, 12-6, but still trail the Yankees by eight games.

Cleveland and Washington divided their bargain bill, the Indians winning the first game, 3-1, the Senators the nightcap, 2-0.

Ted Lyons won his weekly game for the Chicago White Sox, pitching a 2-1 decision over the Philadelphia Athletics. The A's rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to squeeze out. 3-2, in the second game with Phil Marchildon pitching four-hit ball.

Travelers Rally In 9th to Win

A two-run rally in the ninth inning saved an 8-7 victory for Mansfield Travelers over the Lucas Merchants in a baseball game at the Fairground yesterday afternoon.

* * *

Oswalt, who received Hazlett in the ninth, received credit for the victory.

* * *

Mansfield got away to a 4-1 lead in the first inning, but Lucas kept plugging away until a three-run splurge in the seventh tied it up, and the visitors scored another run in the eighth for a 7-6 lead.

They Played For Mansfield Sports Crowns Yesterday

GENE ZEDIKER — MEREDITH FISHER — MARY GREGORIA — BOB MOORHEAD

Golf and tennis took the spotlight in Mansfield sports yesterday in championship play as golf titles were decided at Westbrook Country club and Coolridge golf course, and the women's golf championship at Possum Run, while the girls' championship in the News-Journal city tennis tournament also was on the block. At Westbrook Gene Zediker won the golf championship by defeating three-time title-holder Bob Moorhead, and at Maple Lake Meredith Fisher won the city girls' tennis crown with a two-set victory over Mary Gregoria, who defeated her for the championship a year ago.

Meredith Fisher Wins Girls Tennis Title In Two-Set Victory Over Defending Champ

Scores 9-7, 6-4 Victory Over Mary Gregoria In Finals; Women's Tournament Has Family Feud

TABLES were turned in the girls' championship match of the News-Journal city tennis tournament at Maple Lake courts yesterday afternoon as Meredith Fisher defeated Mary Gregoria 9-7, 6-4 in the finals to win the title which eluded her a year ago.

It was another year and a different story. In 1941 it was Mary who defeated Meredith in the finals for the girls' championship.

But it looked like Mary was going to do it again yesterday as she started out with a 4-1 lead in the first set, then led 5-2, only to see Meredith come fighting back to even up the set, and sending the set to deuce with a deuce game.

Mary went ahead again at 6-5, but Meredith evened it up again, and then took the lead 7-6 in a game that took 14 points. They halved the next two games at 30, and Meredith took the set with a love game.

The second set, while not so long, was just as hard-fought. Meredith took the first game at 30, but Mary took the next two. Meredith evened it up on a game taking 14 points. Mary took the next game and it was 3-2. Then came another deuce game of 16 points which Mary won for a 4-2 lead.

Meredith won the next four games, the first at deuce, the next at 30, the third at love, and the match game at 30 for the championship.

Meanwhile the women's championship shaped up as a family feud with Meredith and her mother, Muriel Fisher taking the challenge of Mary and her sister, Viola in the semi-finals.

Muriel Fisher defeated Helen Myers 7-5, 4-6, 6-2 to go into the semi-finals against Mary Gregoria, while Meredith Fisher meets Viola Gregoria.

* * *

In men's singles, Lowell Bourns yesterday went into the semi-finals with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 victory over Jim Rakestraw, and now meets Gene Rudolph.

Indians Split Mound Duels

Five Double Plays Help Al Milnar to Victory.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—All even so far in their current series with Washington, the Cleveland Indians rested today before playing their last 1942 game in the nation's capital tomorrow.

The six-hit pitching of Al Milnar and a sparkling infield that turned in five double plays helped Cleveland to a 3 to 1 victory yesterday in the opener of a double header with the Senators, but the Tribe was blanked 2 to 0 by Emil Leonard in the nightcap.

By dividing the twin bill, the Indians remained two games behind the third-place St. Louis Browns who broke even at Boston.

The Indians-Senators second game was finished under protest. Manager Lou Boudreau protested after Umpire Ernie Stewart ruled Keltner out for running off the base line on a bunt after Roy Weatherly had singled with one out.

Cleveland collected only five hits in each game. Two of their three runs in the opener came on first inning singles by Weatherly and Keltner, a pass to Les Fleming and Jeff Heath's single.

Milnar drove in the other run in the fourth inning. He singled to score Ray Mack who had tripled. It was Al's sixth win against eight defeats.

In the nightcap, Leonard had the situation so well in hand that only two Tribesmen got as far as second base and none reached third. Mel Harder was charged with the loss.

Rams Cuffed Into Defeat

Field Goal By Ward Cuff Spells Victory.

AKRON —(AP)— The post-mortems make the Cleveland Rams look as good as the New York Giants today—except in completing forward passes.

The Rams bowed to the eastern division champions of the National Professional Football league yesterday 17 to 14, the margin of victory being a 16-yard field goal booted by Ward Cuff before many of the 18,073 spectators were seated.

Aside from their failure to snag passes, the Rams made 18 first downs to the Giants' 13 and outgained the New Yorkers' 325 yards to 319.

Driving 80 yards in seven plays, the Cleveland club scored its first touchdown in the second period, Parker Hall skirting left tackle after long runs by Dante Magnani and Gaylon Smith. Chet Adams added the extra point.

In the same period, the Giants took the lead again, Tuffy Leemans carrying the ball from the six-yard line. The New Yorkers advanced 62 yards, chiefly on passes, for the deciding touchdown in the third period.

Cleveland's second marker was set up in the fourth on a 35-yard pass, Hall to Ben Hightower, and Magnani circled right end to score.

The exhibition was the only game scheduled between the two National league clubs this season.

Lantz Leads In Rifle Club Shoot

G. Lantz took first place in the 30-yard off-hand shoot of the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club Saturday with a percentage of 59.9 in five matches.

A. Wagner was second with 44.4 in six matches, and E. Wagner third with 34.3 in six matches.

In the 50-yard rest matches, shooting for group, J. Baldinger was first with a .95, A. Owen second with 1.35, and E. Light third with 1.37.

Shooting in matches, Baldinger was first with a string of 1.52 inches for three shots, T. Kelser second with 2.14, and Baldinger third with 2.47.

C-LEAGUE BOWLERS MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

Commercial "C" league bowlers again will attempt to organize for the season when they meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Recreation alleys.

A call issued for last Tuesday night was attended by too few to make any definite plans. Managers, sponsors and bowlers are urged to attend tomorrow night's meeting.

Mayer Trades Golf Crowns

Dethroned at Possum, He Reigns at Coolridge.

Joe Mayer, dethroned champion at Possum Run, yesterday traded in his old crown for the Coolridge golf course tiara with a 6-4 victory over Jim Musille in the finals of the Coolridge championship tournament.

In order to give Musille a shot at the championship before he leaves for the army tomorrow, golfers at Coolridge rushed through their final matches last week, Musille defeating Tony Schadek 3-2 in the semi-finals, and Mayer winning from Nick Loris 5-3.

Mayer displayed all his old club wizardry in taking the Coolridge title. He was even par for the first three rounds of the championship match, before he shipped four over on the last nine as they were playing out the string.

Joe took a two-up lead on the first nine, maintained it through the 18, and was 6 up at the end of 27 holes. At one time on the third round Mayer was seven up, but Musille took the ninth with a par.

Mayer won the 10th and 11th with pars, but Musille came back with a birdie on the 12th and par on the 13th to make it two down again. Mayor won the next hole with a par, and Musille took the next one with a bird. They halved the next three.

Starting the afternoon round Mayer took the first two holes in par, and the fourth and sixth with birds, the seventh and eighth with pars before Musille took the only hole of the round in par.

* * *

It was only a matter of Musille running out of holes on the final nine.

Missed Short Putt Tosses Former Champ

New Title Holder Sinks Approach Shot For 1-Up Edge In Morning

BOB MOORHEAD'S bid for his fourth Westbrook Country club golf championship before leaving tomorrow for the army fell short yesterday—short as a missed one-foot putt—as he dropped his 36-hole final match in the club tournament to the consistent shooting of Gene Zediker, four down and two to go. Turning point in the match came on the third hole of the afternoon, a hole on which both golfers treated themselves to some wild shooting.

On their third shots Moorhead was in the rough just below a sand trap at the right of the green, and Zediker had pulled his approach iron high on the hill to the left, beside the woods. Moorhead's approach was strong, rolling across the green and into a shallow trap. Zediker's recovery was half flubbed and trickled down into the same trap.

Their recoveries from the trap were next to perfect, and it was necessary to measure to find who was away for the short putts of little more than a foot. Zediker judged the roll correctly and curved a short tap into the can. Moorhead's putt rimmed the cup on the lower side of the roll, and he lost the hole with a seven.

That put the former champion two down, and was the signal for Zediker to take the next three holes for a five-up margin. Moorhead made a valiant recovery effort on the last nine, taking two holes with birdies, but was dormie with three to go, and Zediker came through with a birdie to close the match.

The morning round of 18 holes was a dog-eat-dog battle from start to finish, with nearly every hole a winner, and the two finalists taking turns at winning them.

It took a sunk approach for a birdie two on the 18th to give Zediker a 1 up margin for the morning.

After taking the first hole with a birdie, Moorhead missed a fine chance to get away in the lead on the second hole. He was on the 353-yard carpet in two, but three-putted, while Zediker, on in three, got down in one putt to even the score.

Moorhead took the next hole with a par 5, Zediker the next with a par 4, Moorhead the fifth with a birdie 3, Zediker the sixth with a par 4, Moorhead the seventh with a par 4, and they finally halved a hole on eight with par 3's. Moorhead went 1 up on the ninth with a par 4.

Zediker evened it up again on the 10th with a par 4, they halved the next hole in par 4's, Moorhead took the 12th with a par 4, Zediker the 13th with a par 4, they halved the long 14th in par 5's, the 15th in par 3's, and 16th in par 4's before Zediker evened the match with a par 5 on the 17th, and went one up by sinking a 40-foot approach on 18 for a birdie 2.

They halved the first two holes of the afternoon round and then came that wild third hole, and the real end of the match. From there on they were merely playing out the string.

Their cards:

Par	445	444	434—36
Moorhead	355	535	434—37
Zediker	446	454	535—40

Providents Defeat Wilks

Blank Tourney Rivals 3-0 in Return Game.

It took the Mansfield Provident Loans 14 innings to get a run off "Gussie" Feyh, stubby hurler for the Columbus Wilks Meats, but the 14th frame was also the first inning of yesterday's softball game at North Lake park, when the Mansfield girls pushed over two markers, and breezed on from there for a 3-0 victory over the team that eliminated them in the recent state tournament at Akron.

Jean Herrick sounded the keynote for the afternoon's pastimeing when she led off in the first inning with a clean hit, went to second on Mary Bessemer's infield out, and sauntered home on Bucky Holda's long single to right center. Holda stole second, took third on Donna Schuster's infield out, and trotted home on Ev Jocha's single to give the Providents a 2-0 lead.

That was all Jeanette Feist, Elyria's slow-ball artist chucking for the Providents, needed. She allowed the Columbus club only two hits, one of the questionable variety, and spaced them between the second and fifth frames. Feyh got one of the safe blows, and was immediately erased, trying to steal second, by a perfect throw, Iceman to Herrick.

Mansfield's five hits were also confined to two frames, three in the first, and two in the fifth. With one down in the latter stanza, Ruth Whiteman drove a ground-rule double into the cars in right field, went to third on Catcher Green's error, and came home for the final run on a Texas league single by Helen Sturgeon.

It was a fast, well-played ball game. Neither pitcher gave a walk, while Feist fanned four, and Feyh three.

DUCKS CLING TO CHARLESTON HEELS

DAYTON —(AP)— The Dayton Ducks clung tenaciously to the leading Charleston Senators in the Mid-Atlantic league pennant chase today.

The Ducks bowled over Springfield 4 to 3 last night to move within two and one-half games of the Senators, who took a 10 to 0 drubbing from the Canton Terriers. Third place Erie divided with Zanesville, the Sailors winning the first 5 to 4 and dropping the finale 3 to 0.

Birds Hold Edge In Final Week

(By Associated Press)

The American Association rolls into its final week of play today with three teams locked in one of the hottest scrambles for the pennant in the league's history.

After yesterday's doubleheaders, in which Kansas City and Milwaukee each won twice and Columbus halved, the race entered the fraction splitting stage in the percentage rankings.

The defending champions, the Columbus Redbirds, appear to have the easiest schedule before the Association closes its bill Labor day and prepares for its annual playoff series.

Columbus still has 10 games to play, two more than Milwaukee and Kansas City. Those last contests are with Indianapolis, now in seventh place, and Toledo in fifth.

The Red Birds trounced Louisville 7 to 2 in the first game of a doubleheader yesterday, but dropped the nightcap 3 to 1 as Nelson Potter hurled a two-hit job for the Colonels.

Kansas City humbled St. Paul twice, 9-4 and 3-1. Milwaukee, too, scored a twin-win, bumping Minneapolis 6-5 and 6-1. Toledo grabbed two close ones from Indianapolis, winning the first 2 to 1, the second 1 to 0.

BUCYRUS POLICE CLEAR MYSTERY OF LOST MONEY

Youth, Who Was Questioned, Released To Enter Armed Forces.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus police announced today that Raymond Coy, who was being held in connection with the temporary disappearance of a large consignment of currency to a local bank, had been released into the custody of army officials.

Coy had been questioned since Thursday after discovery that $10,000 addressed to the Farmers and Citizens bank was lost by a bank messenger.

Police said that all except $300 of the $10,000 had been recovered and that a search was being made for the currency still missing.

Coy was scheduled to leave for induction into the army last Friday but was released to draft officials only yesterday. Bucyrus police said they believed that the mystery had been solved and no charges were preferred against Coy.

Loss of the currency was discovered by Miss Anna Marie Haser, the bank messenger, upon reaching the bank. She informed bank officials and they immediately called the Federal Reserve bank in Cleveland to get the serial numbers on the bills.

Coy allegedly scattered the contents of currency packages after learning that officials were on the trail of the lost money.

An out-of-town truck driver found some of the money in the rear of a grocery on Sandusky street and turned it over to the police. Other persons found bills blown against the windshields of automobiles.

REPORT TIRE THEFT

GALION—Albert Shafer, living west of Galion, reported to Galion police Saturday that five tires and wheels were stolen from his 1941 Plymouth sometime during Friday night.

TRUCK BURNED NEAR ASHLAND

Gasoline Catches Fire While Vehicle Is Traveling on Route 250.

ASHLAND—The cab, motor and one front tire of a truck of the J. R. Edwards Carnival show of Wooster were destroyed by fire on state route 250, one-half mile west of Rowsburg about 6 p. m. Sunday. Traffic was blocked on both directions on the highway for over an hour as the fire spread to grass and two wood fence posts.

Ashland county deputies were called and sent the Ashland fire company to extinguish the blaze. According to Earl Young of Wooster, driver of the truck, he had the gasoline tank on the truck filled before leaving Wooster. Outside of Rowsburg, having motor trouble he stopped to blow out the gasoline line believing that it had become clogged.

It was then that the fire was noticed and although Young tried to smother it with blankets he was unable to do so. He said he could not reach the fire extinguisher carried in the truck as it was in the flaming cab.

The truck was empty at the time. Deputy sheriffs said it is believed that gasoline from the tank ran over the hot moter and started the fire.

THREE-FOURTHS OF A DOZEN

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Nine of the 12 children of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mutrux of suburban Ladue are in either the U. S. armed forces or in other war work, while one of the three not directly engaged is the wife of an army officer.

D. 2, who died Sunday at 2:45 a. m. at Samaritan hospital, were to be held this afternoon at 2 p. m. at the Heyl Funeral home. Rev. D. E. Sower, pastor of Maple Grove church, was to officiate.

The child, who was born June 27, 1942, had been ill for several weeks. Survivors in addition to his parents are a sister, Julia Anne, at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Metcalf of Hayesville and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kolp of Polk.

WOMAN HURT IN COLLISION

BUCYRUS—Mrs. Fred Reeves, 107 East Rensselaer street, escaped with a minor neck injury when the car in which she was riding was struck by a fast Erie freight train Friday afternoon at West Salem.

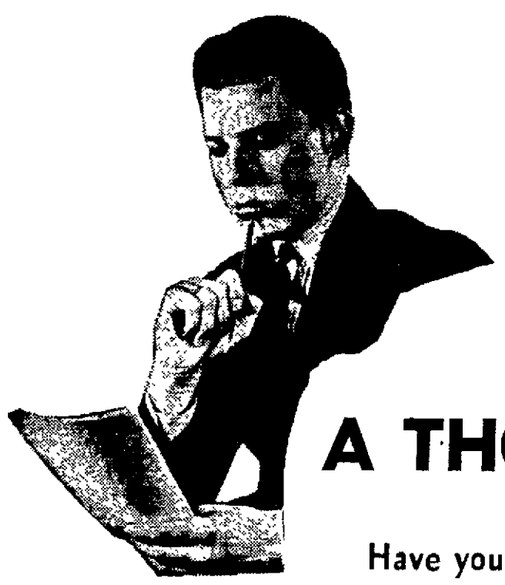
Mrs. Reeves has been proprietor of the Reeves Office Supply store here since her husband was killed in a railroad crossing accident at New London, O., four years ago.

The car was considerably damaged and office supplies being carried in the car were destroyed.

REPORT BIRTHS

GALION—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Dean, 353 South Union street, are the parents of a son born Friday at City hospital. Mrs. Dean is the former Martha Goshorn.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Snyder of Galion at City hospital Saturday.



A THOUSAND LETTERS?

Have you ever stopped to think how difficult it would be to read a thousand letters and decide which might be best?

Some letters might have better ideas. Some might be more cleverly written but lack ideas. There are hundreds of ways in which letters can differ. You just simply cannot add them up and arrive at a truly accurate decision.

The Gallup Poll and other scientific research surveys cannot and do not depend upon letters.

In getting accurate information in making a survey, it is necessary to ask the same question of many people with each of them indicating an exact preference. Their simple statement that they like this or that is an answer which can be counted in terms of 1,000 or 10,000. When those answers have been counted the result is absolutely accurate as to the preferences of those who have been questioned.

There is some very important information that will be very helpful to you as a member of this community which we want you to give us in the Community Survey which will start soon. Instead of bothering you in your homes or sending out interviewers to take up your time when you are busy, we shall ask you to give us this information voluntarily. It only means writing down 3 words a day and sending in your list each week. We are sure you will enjoy doing it.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES ON RECOVERY LINE

Supply of Scrap Keeps Steel Mills Humming Although Margin Called Close.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market got back on the recovery trail in in today's proceedings.

Fractional advances were posted for Chrysler, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio, International Nickel, U. S. Rubber and American Telephone.

Trend analysis studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that "scrap collections continue to supply material to sustain operations of steel mills a high rate but the margin is close in many cases."

The publication warned that "in spite of efforts to gather all dormant material in industrial, household and agricultural sources, the supply is not sufficient to allow melters to accumulate reserves for more than a few weeks consumption. Some large users have supply for only ten days."

THEATERS

South Sea Musical.

Abbott and Costello top the cast in "Pardon My Sarong," the Ohio attraction but the picture is filled with such entertainers as the Four Ink Spots of stage, disc and radio fame, the Tip Tap and Toe dancers and group called the Saronga girls while the main romance is provided by Virginia Bruce and Robert Paige

Air Thriller.

The "forgotten men of the air the test pilots, come into their own in "Flight Lieutenant," the Madison attraction featuring Glenn Ford Evelyn Keyes and Pat O'Brien Other phases of present-day aeronautics are shown in the dramatic story of a young flier eager to wipe out an omission in his father's past that caused the death of a pilot O'Brien has the role of the father and Glenn Ford that of the son. "Blondie for Victory," the second feature has Penny Singleton and the usual "Blondie" cast.

Sabotage Theme.

A young aircraft worker falsely accused of sabotage runs down the real enemies in "Saboteur," reputed to be Director Alfred Hitchcock's most brilliant achievement, showing at the Ritz Robert Cummings appears as the worker and Priscilla Lane as his wife. A coast to coast chase from California to New York harbor enlivens the picture and the cast includes Otto Kruger, Alan Baxter and Dorothy Peterson. Gene Autry's "Call of the Canyon" is the second film.

War Comedy.

An American flier in the R.A.F goes berserk just for the fun of it in "The Wife Takes a Flyer," the Park attraction co-starring Franchot Tone and Joan Bennett. In this way he throws the Nazi gestapo off the track after he makes a forced landing in Holland. Tone appears as the flier who poses as the husband of a pretty Hollander under the nose of a German agent. Allyn Joslyn plays the agent. "A Desperate Chance for Ellery Queen," the co-feature, has William Gargan in the leading role.

Closter Enlists Women to Fight Village Fires

CLOSTER, N J. —(INS)— When Beatrice Kay was a little girl her mother bought her some dolls for Christmas and a boy cousin a fire engine. Beatrice ignored the dolls and appropriated the engine Today she is the first volunteer firewoman in Closter

"I hope to organize a corps of about 20 women," she said "The women will take over tasks within their scope, including first aid, the handling of spotlight and light hose, acting as messengers, doing anything at all where they can be useful.

When she first started following fire engines with several other women, Mrs. Kay admitted, the hairy-chested firemen just "laughed and laughed." But now, she insisted, "they are taking us seriously."

Mrs Kay says she is going to ride a fire truck. Chief E W. Stagg isn't quite so sure. "We have to figure this thing out," he said

But Mrs Kay already has made up her mind. "I'll ride a truck or know the reason why," she declared, stamping a No. 2 shoe

GREW WARNS OF HARD JOB AHEAD

Japan Won't Crack, We'll Have To Go All-Out to Win, Says Returned Ambassador.

ization and humanity," Grew said.

"Let us put it in a nutshell: There is not sufficient room in the area of the Pacific ocean for a peaceful America, for any and all of the peace-loving United Nations, and a swash-buckling Japan."

He cautioned Americans against expecting Japan to crack under pressure of reverses — they will serve only to steel the Japanese for greater sacrifices.

"When they struck," he said, "they made no provision for failure; they left no road open for retreat. They struck with all the force and power at their command And they will continue to fight in the same manner until they are utterly crushed. . .

"We shall crush that machine and caste and system in due course. But if we Americans think that, collectively or individually, we can continue to lead our normal lives, leaving the spirit of self-sacrifice to our soldiers and sailors, letting the intensification of our production program take care of itself, we shall unquestionably risk the danger of a stalemate in this war with Japan."

SOONERS CLING TO BOOLA SONG

University of Oklahoma Keeps Yale Song Despite Scrap.

(By United Press)

NORMAN, Okla.—War has affected a lot of things on the campus, but the University of Oklahoma still clings to the Yale university song "Boola Boola" which it has re-named "Boomer Sooner."

The fight over the song has become a perennial one. When President Joseph A Brandt first came to the university last fall from Princeton, where he directed the Princeton Press, he attempted to sound out opinion on changing from "Boomer Sooner" (or "Boola Boola") to a new, yet-unwritten tune.

The response was not favorable to Brandt's idea. Students began to sing "Boomer Sooner" in their rooming houses after dinner instead of eating their desserts and drinking their coffee.

David Wood, sports editor of the university student newspaper, recently employed his personal column to defend "Boomer Sooner"

"Okay so Yale has a song, 'Boola Boola,' and the Sooners took the tune. Yes, and Harvard, which is the oldest American university, took its song from an old Irish tune, 'Believe Me, If All These Endearing Young Charms.' . . Besides, the Sooner band puts a mid-western fervor into the piece that makes the way Yale men sing it sound more like Chopin's funeral march."

Crowd Expected Tuesday For New Draftee Farewell

call for meetings at noon draftees have been asked to report at 11 30 a. m. so that short civic programs may be held at the meeting places

Board 3's group will leave Thursday at the same time and by the same route This marks the first time draftees from Board 3 will leave the city by train and also will be the first time a unit from that board goes to Fort Harrison rather than Fort Hayes Columbus

Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Civic Victory committee is in charge of arrangements for send-offs for the contingents.

The selectees will march from their meeting places uptown down Main street to the Union station. This month there will be no special train so farewells must be said more quickly than on previous occasions.

The Westinghouse CIO band will play tomorrow and the Mansfield Senior high school band will lead the draftees in their farewell parades down Main street and will serenade the crowds at the station on Wednesday and Thursday

Last month 5,000 persons turned out to say good-bye to the departing selectees. Saltzgaber today urged all persons to be on hand on all three days to see the boys off

48-HOUR WEEK FOR WOMEN OUT

HARRISBURG —(INS)— A large reserve of female labor makes it unnecessary for women in Pennsylvania's war industries to work overtime as requested by employers, according to Marv M. Morrow, chief of the minimum wages and hours bureau.

"It hardly seems right to ask for longer hours when there is a reservoir of labor available," she said "Nearly all defense areas in the state have a pool of married women who want to work Until that supply is drained, requests for a 48-hour week will be discouraged"

Women are permitted to work 44 hours in Pennsylvania although the state industrial board is authorized to extend the working limit in war industries especially where continuous production makes short hours impractical.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS AT MOVIES OPEN BOND SALES TOMORROW

Mansfield will swing into a combination "10 Per Cent Month" and "Salute the Heroes" campaign for the month of September in special bond sales programs to be staged at all Mansfield theaters tomorrow night.

Seeking to meet the September quota of $587,000 for bond and stamp sales and to sign up all industrial plants under the 10 per cent wage deduction system, a special committee is in charge of arrangements for sales activities during the month.

The opening gun in the committee's campaign will be fired at tomorrow night's meetings at the theaters. The color guard of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Westinghouse CIO local band will make appearances at the Park, Ritz and Madison theaters to start bond sales programs.

The Ohio theater will open its program at 9 p m with the audience singing patriotic songs accompanied by organ music. J Gilbert Baird will act as master of ceremonies and Paul M. Eliot, Richland county chairman of bond sales, will give a short talk.

Workers from the Mansfield B'nai B'rith organization, under the direction of Mrs A J Goldsmith, will be in charge of the sales of bonds and stamps in all theaters on the opening day of the campaign. Selling will start at 6 p m The B'nai B'rith group, conducting its own national campaign, has made one of the best bond sales records in the city

The programs at the Park theater will be staged at 8.15 p m with Atty J H. Gongwer, member of the September committee, giving a talk.

The Ritz program will open at 8 45 p. m with Paul Endriss, another committee member, as speaker John L Catlett will address the audience at the Madison theater at 9:15 p m

Tomorrow night's meetings touch off the beginning of a month packed with bond sales activity The committee has arranged daily activities for the entire month, the high points to be the appearance here of a top-ranking motion picture star on Sept 15, and a special sales program in connection with Labor Day ceremonies.
